Phil Berton 1951 - 1983

On July 27, 1983, Mr. Phil Berton passed away after a long and futile struggle with leukemia. He had been at Sabino for five years, teaching all photography classes; however, last year he accepted the position as the yearbook advisor also, working closely with both photographers and Vista staffers. Furthermore, Mr. Berton also commuted to Catalina High School each day to teach his photography classes there.

Phil Berton will be remembered as a considerate, caring man by those who knew him. The 1984 Vista staff wishes to express our deep gratitude to Phil Berton for the devotion of his time to our 1983 Vista yearbook, without whom it never would have been possible. We, the 1984 Vista staff and photographers, dedicate our 1983-84 VISTA to Mr. Phil Berton-teacher, advisor, and friend.

1. "Wait a minute, this is only a Ford Escort!" As soon as Steve Bauer got his driver's license, a whole new crop of friends showed up, begging for a ride.
2. Senior Susanne Bartlett and friends express their sheer delight in the cafeteria food they've put up with for 4 years.
3. Pat McClain, senior, seems to sum up his true feelings toward school in a graphic way.
4. Oh no, not again . . . Most of us Sabers can sympathize with Senior Dale Sparks as he falls prey to Mr. Carey one more time.

Memorable Moments Make High School Special

Looking back at the school year 1983-84, what memorable moments pop into your head first? Going out with friends after football or basketball games. Dating that special guy or gal. Staying awake until three in the morning typing up your research paper. Trying to explain to your parents the grades on your report cards. Dressing up crazily on Spirit Week days. Your first taste of the cafeteria food.

Every Saber can remember those times, good and bad. Moment to Moment, those were great times in our lives, those high school years. Sabino became our home away from home, with activities as well as school, keeping our spirits up and our thoughts in motion.

Sabino was a special place for all of us, whether it was a beginning point for a freshman, or an ending point for a senior. All younger students can look to the future for the special times ahead, while the seniors can reminisce on their magical moments they've experienced. Special times gave us enjoyment and tears, and kept us living . . . Moment to Moment.

Remembered Times Lead On To Bigger Things

Seize the moment! Catch the fun, excitement, smiles and tears. 1984 was the time for it all. First dates, everyday adventures and final goodbyes all marked moments of embarrassment, craziness and a touch of sentiment. Taking things one day at a time, students captured the special moments only enjoyed in high school. Times that were irreplaceable, personal and invaluable can never be forgotten. They are ours to remember and to use as a stepping stone for even more memories of the future. When times get bad, we have an advantage. We can remember our moments at Sabino, our reference point.

A Preppy

The preppy look, around for years, has attracted a lot of popularity, but as shown on model Mary Beth Callie, plaid, polo, and prep can be taken to extremes.

1. "This is tres borrrrrring."
2. Keys to Daddum's Mercedes Benz.
3. An authentic cardigan, Mummy wore it to Radcliffe.

Sabers Have Fun, Year Long And Statewide

Parents may have wished that our social lives were not top priority, but priority or not, they played an important role in busy schedules, especially weekend schedules. The Saturn Three arcade closed and Jack-in-the-Box returned as a major "hangout". The student council promoted even more dances with record attendances. In music, more and more new groups rose to the charts in a flash and submerged into oblivion just as quickly. The convertible gained recognition plus stares as more were manufactured and more Sabino students were seen showing off in them. Shopping stole free time away whether it was for gifts or personal purchases as compulsive shoppers took to the malls. Sports were another important part of social activity, whether students were attending Sabino games, U of A football games or getting together for a casual game of tennis on the weekend. Sabino students were always seen having a good time all over Arizona from a weekend in Phoenix to a day at Mount Lemmon or a week in the White Mountains.

All-American Homecoming Excites Sabers

Homecoming Week had a different twist this year- the theme being "All-American." Nominating Sabino's royalty and Top Ten songs started off the week's festivities. On Tuesday, the main event was the All-American Pie Eating Contest at lunch; the Seniors leaving the table victorious. Bear hugs were numerous around Sabino as people exchanged "hug coupons." On Wednesday and Thursday Sabino's most talented musicians joined together as airbands and performed before judges. Then at the dance on Friday, the winning groups AC/DC, The Clash, and Men Without Pants played for us on stage. Also on Thursday was the Tootsie Dress Alike Day, giving guys the chance to compete with Dus-

Friday was the climactic end of Homecoming Week with: the Spirit Assembly, the Homecoming game, the announcement of the King and Queen, and the final conclusion to it all- the Homecoming Dance with a super turnout of students.

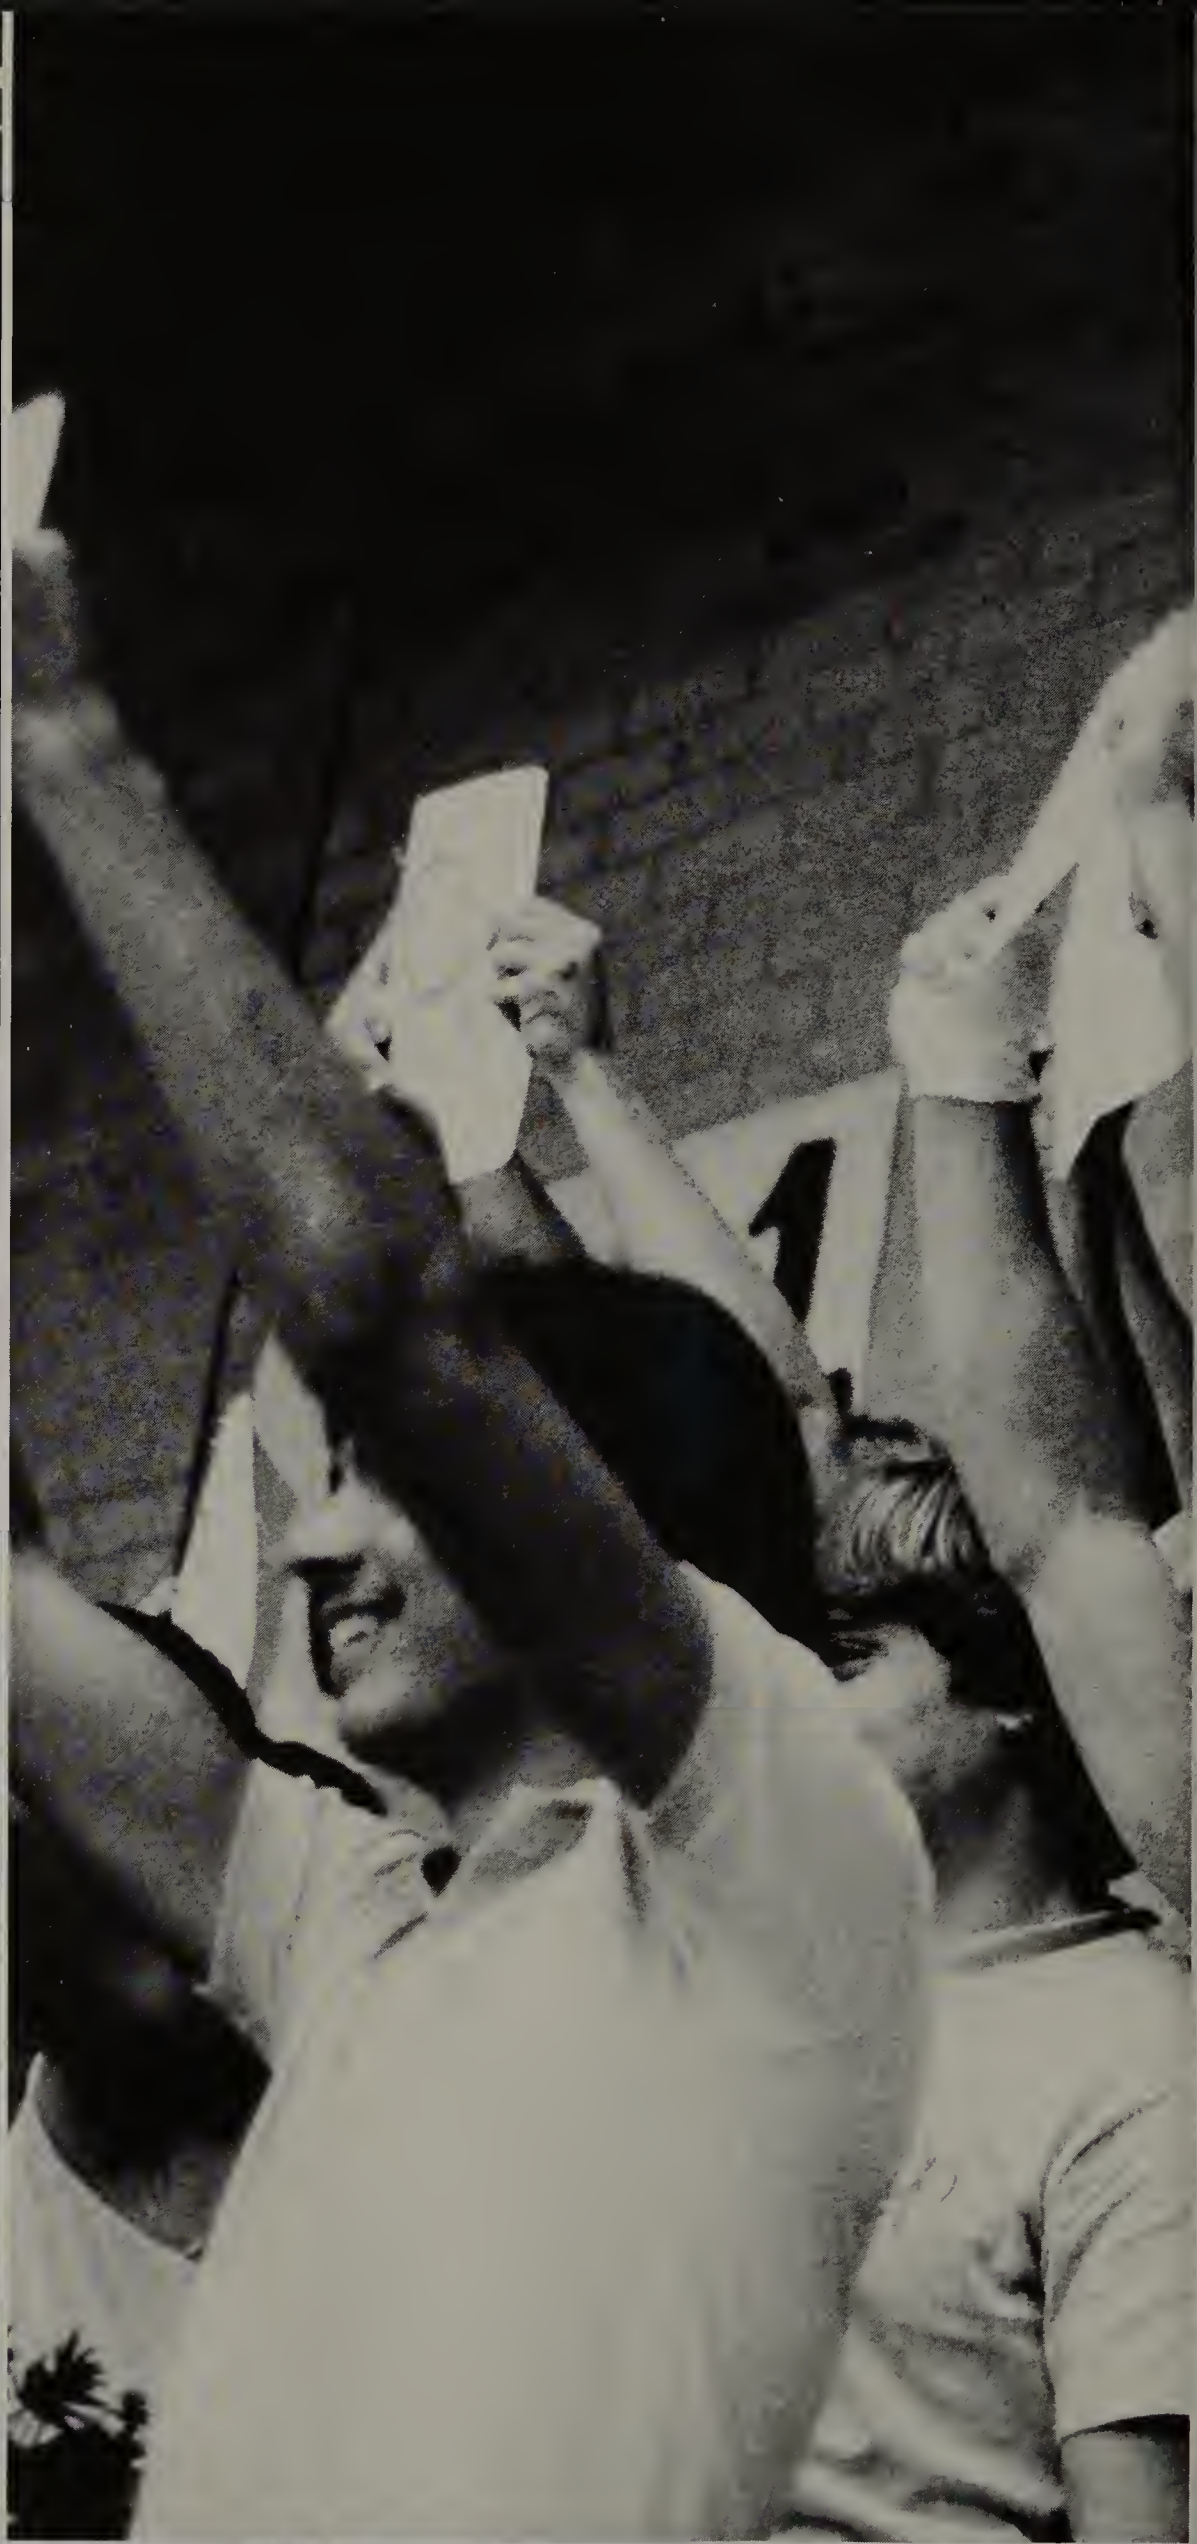

Homecoming seemed to be a little more enjoyable this year for most, as the All-American activities were different from previous years.

Pizza Pandemonium

The freshman year of high school can be a traumatic experience; however, Big Sis/Lil Sis Week prevented some of these fears. Big Sis/Lil Sis Week was held in September, with the senior and freshmen girls being paired off on the first night. Some girls took 2 or 3 sisters, adding to the fun and confusion.

The highlight of the week was the pizza party at Peter Piper's. Crazy things abounded, as the girls became closer friends with each other. Another unforgettable memory was of the seniors kidnapping their little sisses at 5 a.m. and taking them straight to school! Other activities included: dress-alike day and the traditional picnic. Many sisters also received flowers, candy, or decorated lockers as an additional surprise.

The senior girls enjoyed "taking care of" their freshmen, while the freshmen enjoyed having a pretend big sis for a week. Big/Lil Sis Week will be remembered by all who participated in it.

Spirit Week Set Trends

It was one of the most colorful, memorable and fun-filled weeks of the school year. This year's Spirit Week had fewer dress up-days but more student participation. Scattered throughout the halls were college sweat shirts, Army fatigues, and Hawaiian beach bums.

To go with the original and sometimes bizarre outfits were the outrageous lunchtime activities. Sabers could be found tossing water balloons, necking with coco-nuts, and if this weren't enough, some could be found stealing a quick kiss under the mistletoe!

The days weren't the only times filled with Christmas cheer. In the evenings, many well-tuned voices echoed through the neighborhoods as students caroled for cans.

Why did students so faithfully donate their time and effort for Spirit Week? Because each class coveted the honor of being chosen as Number One.

Breaking all past Sabino records, the Junior class placed first, with the Seniors coming in for a close second.

However, Yuletide cheer was not lost in the bringing in of the highly publicized 1984.

Spirit Soars High

Spirit Week! What do the words "spirit week" mean to you? Well, to the Sabino Student Council they mean a chance to bring the whole student body together in achieving a major goal. That goal is in raising school spirit. Our school spirit reached an extremely high plateau. We were all rewarded when the Josten's company presented our council with the traveling spirit award for the month of January. Although every class competed against each other, the main objective was to form school spirit and unity. Sabino has reached it's goal but is not stopping at that; we are well known around town as the school to be reckoned with. This year's fun-filled spirit week was one that will be long remembered. Each and every Saber deserves the highest admiration for their part in the fight against mediocrity.

SENIORS COOK UP A SWEET CHRISTMAS

Rodeo Weekend With Sabercat Style

Although it seemed like nothing was done for Rodeo at Sabino, a lot of students found it to be one of the best weeks of the year. Over one hundred and twenty Sabinoans skied the slopes at Telluride for four days. Others, who preferred an exciting wilderness trip, hiked the Grand Canyon to Havasupai Falls. Of course, many students recognized the original purpose of Rodeo vacation and spent a few days at the Tucson Rodeo and La Fiesta De Los Vaqueros.

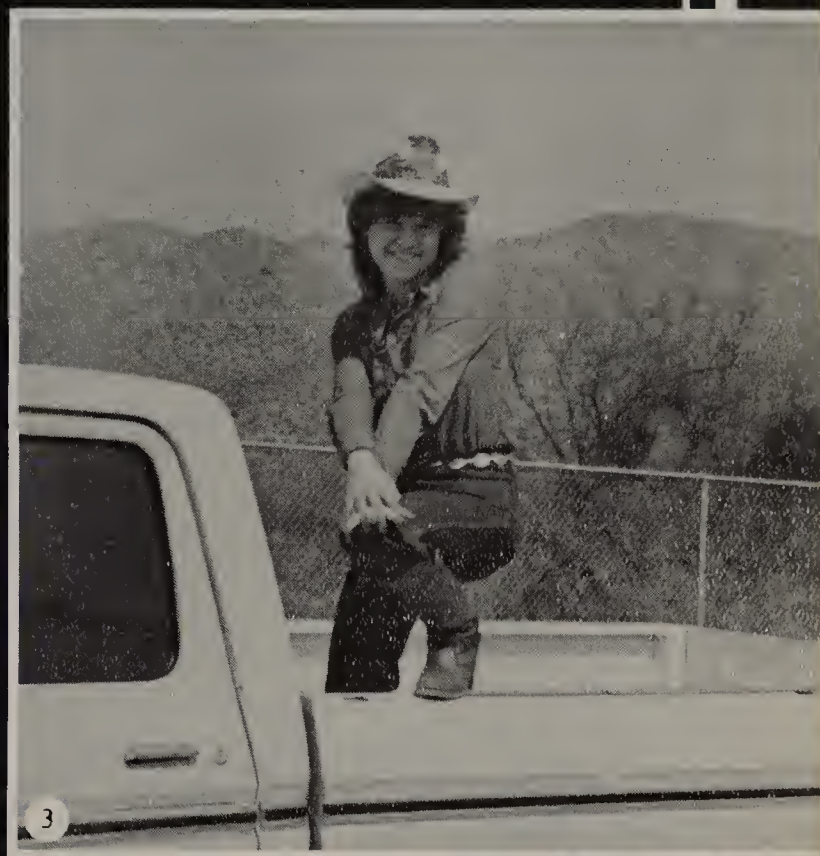

Saber baseball players spent three days of their vacation competing in the Southern Division Tournament and eighty-eight band members marched in the Rodeo Parade.

Juniors Cody Lee and Randy Luker, spent their weekend a little more dangerously than most teenagers did; they rode bulls and broncs at the Tucson Rodeo. Both admit that they chose one of the tougher sports to compete in.

Even though there wasn't the traditional Rodeo King and Queen or Rodeo Dance at Sabino, Sabers managed to celebrate Rodeo vacation with their own touch of class.

The race for the democratic presidential nomination took off in Iowa with a whopping eight candidates including: Rubin Askew, Alan Cranston, John Glenn, Gary Hart, Ernest Hollings, Rev. Jesse Jackson, George McGovern, and Walter Mondale. Mondale, former Vice-President under Jimmy Carter, won Iowa handily as expected after being endorsed by such interest groups as N.O.W. and the Teamsters Union. Then came New Hampshire and the big surprise; with a campaign based on new ideas, Gary Hart won it and went on to gains in Maine and Vermont, leaving Walter Mondale to regroup his efforts and admit a Possible Hart nomination. On the Republican side of things there was little obvious campaigning in the early months. A few Reagan visits to primary states and some campaign-sounding confidence led voters to look toward the elections in November. The Winter Olympic games in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia yielded only eight U.S. medals but one of the strongest U.S. ski showings in history. The week started off with a surprise victory in the women's giant slalom, a boasting Bill Armstrong and a silver finish by teammate Christin Cooper. When the downhill event came along, a boasting Bill Johnson predicted, "Top three? I'll finish in the top one." He was right, much to the surprise and delight of Americans. Perhaps the most heart warming victory however, was the 1-2 finish of twin brothers Phil and Steve

Mahre in the slalom event. Phil, however, was disappointed to have missed a more important victory, the birth of his son, Alexander, in Phoenix. The remaining U.S. medals were gained in figure skating. Scott Hamilton fought in illness to do just what was expected of him—win the gold in the men's program. Hoping for a bronze in pairs skating, Kitty and Peter Carruthers earned a silver with a spectacular final performance. Women's figure skater Rosalynn Sumners, predicted to take the gold, instead came in a close second to East Germany's Katarina Witt and then prepared for a pro career.

1984 was a year full of elections, olympiad events and yes, graduation. It was also a year, interestingly enough, of George Orwell's Big Brother and doublethink. Orwell's prediction of society, released in 1948, did not come true; well not exactly. Constant comparisons were made between his book and lifestyles behind the iron curtain. The recent surge of computers, especially in the home, were considered by many to be the Big Brother of our 1984. The year was an interesting year for everyone but particularly special for Sabino's graduating class of 1984.

They Strive To Be Efficient

The administration was the stepping stone for the Sabino students and faculty. The administrators boosted us up and gave us the encouragement to continue the climb into adulthood. Without them our school system and education would be lost. They pulled us through it all.

The 1983-1984 Sabino administration proved efficient. It consisted of Mrs. Lou Ann Daldrup, principal; and three assistant principals: Mr. Lee Carey, operations; Mr. Jack Dyson, Instruction; and Dr. Joseph Hines, student activities. Together they worked as a team.

Mrs. Daldrup has been at Sabino for four years. She believes that Sabino's students have become more serious about their education. She also believes that the students and the teachers must work together to become a whole, known as Sabino. Mrs. Daldrup put a lot of effort and time into making the 1983-1984 school year the best ever.

When Mrs. Daldrup was asked how this year compared to previous years she said, "Everyone has a good attitude towards Sabino." They were there to see us through.

Where Would We Be Without Them?

When your appointment time finally arrives, you go into your counselor's office and find him behind piles of papers. Even though he's busy he sets his work aside and stops to help you with your needs and problems.

The counselors do such things as schedule changes and choosing colleges, arrange meetings with our parents and teachers, and help with student discipline.

This year Dr. Gazzola was the Dept.

Chairman and the freshman counselor, taking over for the retired Mr. Scott. There are three other counselors: Mrs. Bowers, seniors; Mr. Maklin, juniors; and Mr. Grimm, sophomores.

Peer counseling consisted of eleven helpful students. They provided assistance in the career center along with helping other students. Peer counselors worked in various areas: new student orientation, career and college planning, and social and emotional problems.

Another aspect of student services was the nurse, Mrs. Lattomus. She has been at Sabino for five years, curing our aches and pains and writing our doctor's excuses. In these five years here, the most common reason for going home she says, is the stomach ache. Where would we be without her?

Sabino's Unknown Heroes

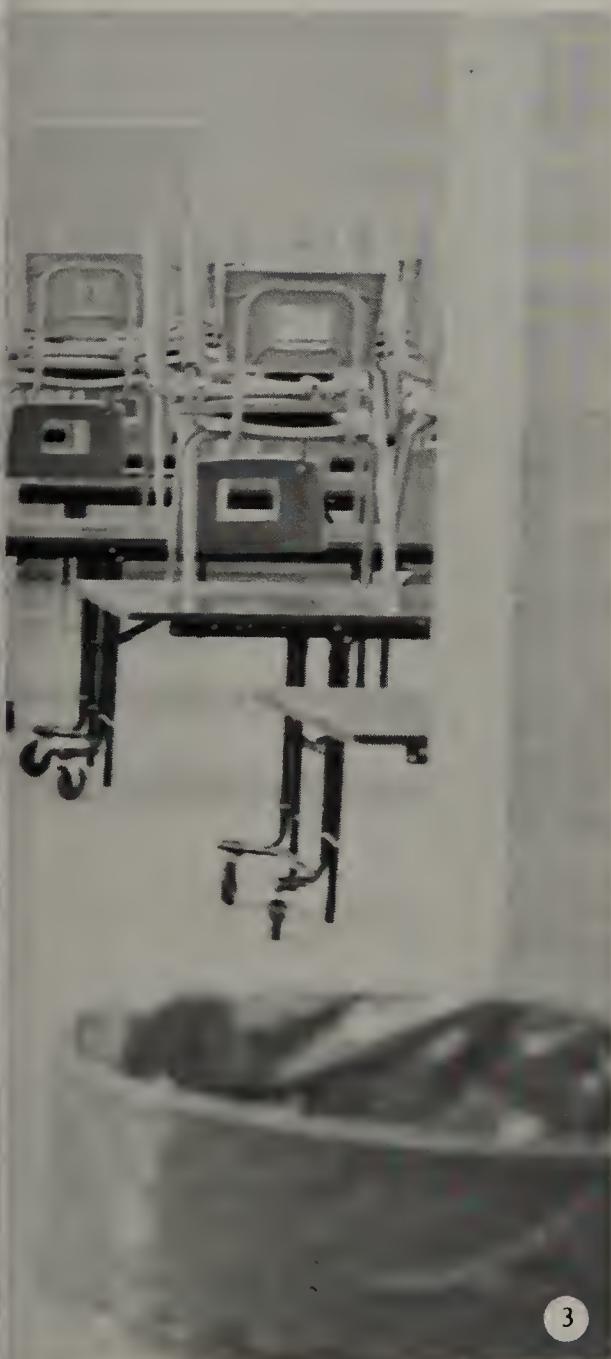

Many of us take for granted the almost unlimited services of our wonderful campus service personnel. Without them, where would we have been? Knee deep in garbage? Starving, from eating home-made lunches? Well, in our opinion, we have a lot to be thankful for. This year our campus personnel worked infinitely hard for innumerable hours to keep our school the way it is. But these people are not just hard-working. Not only did they do their jobs with no complaints, but they did them with smiles on their faces. Nothing cheered up a student's day more than a friendly, "Thank you, here is your change," from a lunch lady. It would have been nice if they could have handed the students their change, but no one is perfect. Without these hard-working individuals, our wonderful school would fall into ruin. So from now on, let us all set aside a few minutes of prayer and thanks for

"Sabino's Unknown Heroes;" the campus personnel.

Special Services Reach Out

Getting involved with your chosen profession is what P.I.P. is all about. Even though the Professional Internship Program met only once a week with their teacher, Dr. Barbery, students learned a lot about the career they were interested in my experiencing it first hand.

The GATE program consisted of kids that had an IQ score labeled as gifted. This class was an elective and most students in the class were recommended by their Junior High counselors. The two teachers who were involved with the GATE program were Mrs. Kolb and Mrs. Baker, teaching Humanities, English, and Global Studies.

English, math, and science are just a few of the many classes offered in the Adaptive Education program. This program was developed to give students additional help in their studies. Other such classes were American History, C.P.S., Free Enterprise, and a basic skills class, with 3 full-time teachers and 1 part-time teacher teaching them. This year Sabino received a new department chairman, Mae Cleary.

Is It Fact Or Fiction?

What do "The Raven" and the Po-o-ali Honeycreeper from the slopes of the Heleaka volcano in Hawaii have in common? They were both found among the 21,012 volumes of literary writings in Sabino's library.

However, the library was not appreciated by all who visited it. On December 8 at 3:30 a.m., Sabino's library was discovered in a shambles. Copy machines were destroyed, books were torn from the shelves, and glass lay shattered everywhere. But the swift attention of Sabino's library staff, aides, and librarians brought things back to normal in a very short time.

The library proved to be a necessary asset when preparing a report or a last minute paper; although escape from a busy schedule was often required, a quick step through the pages of fact and fantasy was able to take the reader backward or forward in time to a new dimension of life through another's eyes.

In order to find the perfect book for the occasion, assistance was sought and found in the librarians.

The library, whether it was used for work or relaxation, offered a wealth of information to all who entered its doors.

English-An International Language

Homonyms, synonyms, Shakespeare, and vocabulary. Sound familiar? In Sabino's English department students learned about these terms and more. Students found out that sentence diagramming isn't so confusing, and literature isn't so boring with the help of the dedicated teachers in Sabino's English department.

New teachers moved into the Sabino neighborhood. A new class, skills class, became a course that was offered this year, although the modern media class was cancelled.

"Students are taking their work more seriously," commented Mr. John Harvey, the department chairman. Even though football games and pizza parties were marked on many Sabers' calendars, they didn't let that get in the way of their punctuation and gerunds.

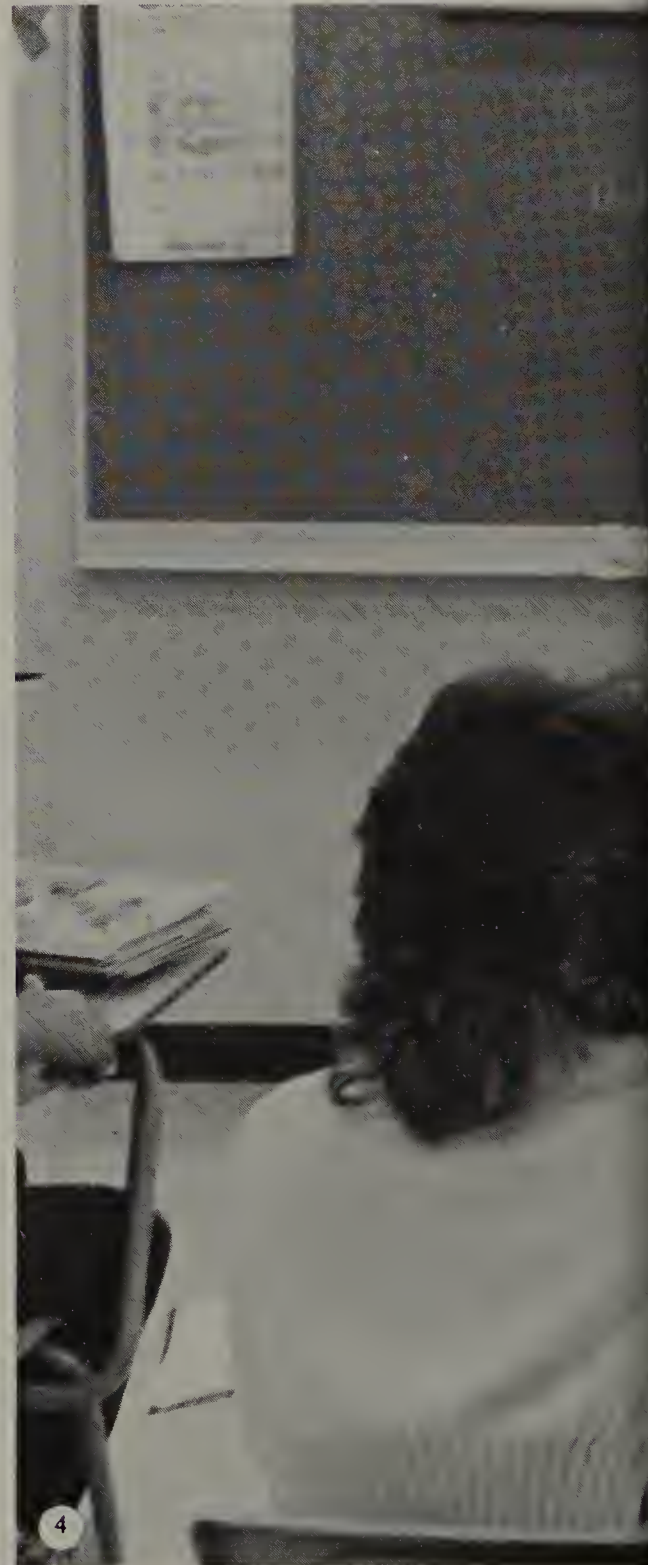

English is an international language.

Students at Sabino learned a little more than just the basic reading and writing skills. Through each year of high school, students learned how to communicate better with the people in their lives.

Encounters of the Foreign Kind

What has six heads, twelve legs, and speaks five foreign languages fluently? If you said the Sabino modern language department, you guessed right!

Students enrolled in three classes experienced the many ups and downs of learning a different language. It required everything from conjugating verbs in countless different ways to discovering about foreign cultures and customs. The basics of speaking and writing were often taught in fun and unusual ways, such as performing skits, writing and translating stories.

There were many changes made in the department this past year. Mrs.

Murolo retired and Mr. Whiteson took over all German classes along with Hebrew and Spanish courses. Mrs. Grimbale was made department chairman and taught 1st and 2nd period Italian classes along with a few French classes. Mrs. Campos taught beginning French along with Spanish.

Although there were many faculty changes made, students still gained valuable language experiences of the foreign kind.

Social Studies: More Than Just History

When Social Studies is brought up, the first thoughts that come to mind are: a required class, hours of learning about history, and boring. However, Social Studies is more than just history. It's politics- both foreign and domestic, economics, and comparisons of everything from political institutions to behavioral traits.

Courses such as American History, Government, and C.P.S. concentrated mainly on domestic matters. However, several social studies classes exceeded the basic standards. Mrs. Munger's Psychology and Sociology classes centered on the reactions and emotions a person experiences in daily life, whereas Mr. Hayes' World Cultures class learned about lifestyles and customs of Third World and primitive cultures.

Social Studies was taught in many different ways. In Mrs. Oliver's Free Enterprise classes, seniors were paired off and married so that they could learn the advantages and disadvantages of preparing a budget. Other teaching techniques were guest speakers who were brought in. Their experiences ranged from Vietnam combat to serving a life sentence in jail.

Although different methods were used, Social Studies was presented in such a manner that all students benefited.

Sabers Prepare For High-Tech World

Whether it was the college entrance requirements or the interesting subjects involved, many students studied science at Sabino this year. Chemistry, the most popular choice, was perhaps the most difficult to understand. At first it seemed useless to learn chemical formulas, but as the year progressed, many students began to relate their studies to everyday life. Classroom humor and interesting demonstrations helped to break the monotony of long lectures.

The science menu at Sabino consisted of courses ranging from Chemistry and Physics to Astronomy. Biology, which was of particular interest to students new to the world of science, had five different areas to choose from. Human Anatomy and Genetics was a must for those planning to go into a career of medicine. Those with a weak stomach were not encouraged to take Plants and Animals, where reptiles and amphibians frequently fell prey to aspiring surgeons. Marine Biology, Environment, and Animal Behavior were the other options in Biology. New this year was an Advanced Chemistry course, taught by Mr. Johnson. With the variety of courses offered, it was no surprise that many Sabers chose a science class to learn about the life and the laws of the universe.

Dreaming A Number Wonderland Nightmare

Do you remember the nights you stayed up, studying your brains out for that tough test in your math class? Once you finally got to sleep, the Pythagorean Theorem, Law of Sines, hyperbolas, and all sorts of real and imaginary numbers danced about your head. Waking up, you felt as though you had been through a number wonderland nightmare.

True, math may have been confusing, but Sabino came to our rescue with a great math department. Led by the department chairman, Mr. Rick Hamilton, the twelve members of the department were always there in times of trouble.

Sabino not only had a full force of math teachers, but also a full force of 55 math classes, involving about 1650 devoted math students. The change in college credit requirements brought this increase. More and more students went back to math, even after a few years, to receive math credits needed. Also new IBM computers helped bring about this increase. Mr. Hamilton predicted, "Sabino should do well on the state and national math tests".

Math is used in all fields of work. A good math background is a necessity in succeeding in college and in getting a good paying job. We should be appreciative to those math teachers who kept our heads spinning at night.

Broadway, Eat Your Heart Out!

Each new year brings different changes; this year was no exception. The Fine Arts Department had many new additions. This year Beverly Grimbale was the new department head; Robert Rawdin, the band teacher; Charlotte Pierce, the orchestra teacher; and Richard Franz, the choir director. Judy Corcoran and Alex Kerstitch of art and drama were the only teachers left from last year.

Robert Rawdin, one of the new additions to the Fine Arts, replaced Robert LeFevre's job as band teacher. Charlotte Pierce was another new teacher, replacing Richard Gregory in the orchestra. The last addition was Richard Franz, the choir director, who replaced Donald Smith.

Alex Kerstitch taught painting, commercial design, and advanced art.

Judy Corcoran has been with the department for ten years and can remember when the Little Theater hadn't even been built. She says, "Sabino's Little Theater is one of the best theaters in Tucson," and that all of her classes were "very sophisticated" and had a lot of potential in future acting careers. Mrs. Corcoran's goal was not to produce future actors and actresses but to give her students the confidence to get up in front of a group of people.

Sabino has a great Fine Arts Department with willing teachers to help you get involved with school activities and become more confident. Future plans for the department are to have more productive years and to help improve self-esteem and confidence. The spotlight's on you, Sabino!

Sabino Means Business

Business Education helped get students started off on the right foot in the world of business.

Sabino offered a variety of courses in Business Education; these classes provided a good background for students heading straight to work after high school or students who planned to go on to college.

Recognizing the importance of computers in the modern business world, Sabino's business department kept up with the best of equipment with the Apple, IBM, and TRS 80 computers.

Typing, a basic tool needed in business, also prepared students for working with computers. Typing classes offered students the basics, from putting the paper in the typewriter to typing a formal paper.

Distributive Cooperative Education was offered only to Seniors. Here students were placed in marketing positions and could earn two credits.

The Business Education department provided essential skills for furthering students in the world of business.

Future Homemakers Of America

Home economics, the art of home management, involved several classes at Sabino.

Ms. Brown's cooking classes did more than actually preparing food. They studied nutrition, diet, weight control, and etiquette. Students who wanted an intensified study in restaurant operations had the opportunity to attend Catalina each day.

Ms. Richardson taught Sewing, Interior Design, Child Development, and Single Survival.

In sewing, students learned about material texture, clothing construction, and patterns. They also worked with a variety of materials.

In Interior Design, students designed and decorated their dream houses as they learned about color, design, and furniture arrangement.

Child Development courses offered a study on children from birth to six years. Students learned how children developed physically, emotionally, socially, and intellectually.

Single Survival taught students how to manage on their own after high school. They learned money management and adult responsibilities.

The Home Economic classes proved that the art of home management is more than just being a happy homemaker.

Industrial Arts Builds It Better

Picture this: the smell of sawdust, large room, contraptions all around the room. Not exactly your everyday classroom but definitely a classroom. Predominately male, the shop classes this year at Sabino included Mechanical Drawing, Electrical Mechanics, Woodcraft, Drafting, Metalform, Photography, Car Care, Auto Mechanics and even more.

You cannot just plunge into woodworking and build a stepping stool, just like you cannot rewire your house or fix your car without the proper knowledge. However there was an excellent staff of Industrial Arts teachers at Sabino, dedicated to teaching our students.

About 700 students took some sort of Industrial Arts class this year. George Williams said, "I took Electrical Mechanics because it concerns a career with a broad future." Mike Riggins took Woodcraft because he felt it was an interesting but fun class where you, amazingly, learn a lot.

Sabino, once again, offers the best of everything, including it's Industrial Arts Department.

Sabers Benefit From Fitness

Sabino athletes were among the many Sabers who participated in Physical Education. For the third consecutive year, athletes began their practice during sixth period, despite many protests by parents and faculty. Freshmen and Sophomores, who were required to take P.E., had a variety of sports in their programs, such as: Football, Basketball, and Badminton. While these students enjoyed games, many adventurous Sabers were conditioning themselves.

Students found a fast-paced course in Mr. Hall's bicycling class. Students took 5 to 10 mile rides around Sabino's neighborhood daily and took an occasional field trip to such places of interest as Saguaro National Monument.

Perhaps the most strenuous course was Coach Belt's weight training and conditioning class. Students lifted weights three days a week and were occasionally timed in short-distance sprints. One day a week was devoted to trail runs covering 2 to 5 miles.

While often overlooked in favor of academic subjects, the P.E. department provided Sabers with the opportunity to increase their strength, endurance, and athletic skills.

lity?

'Twas the night before the flood, and all through Arizona, not a roof was dripping, not even a wash.

Amusing?

A quite uncommon incident occurred in October this past year; an incident that will go down in history.

Some claim it "a 100 year flood." Others call it amusing. Just what was so exciting about the numerous rain-swollen riverbeds? Well, Sabino students, as well as many other District 1 students, found the flood rewarding because we missed a day of school.

The flood actually was neither amusing nor rewarding. Ten people lost their lives, people were left homeless, property and roads were ruined. Arizona was a disaster.

Therefore, Tucson, as well as many other cities, was declared a National Disaster Area by President Reagan.

The incredible surges of water destroyed everything in sight. Damage costs reached an overwhelming amount of $54 million. Families' homes were literally washed away. Families of Tucson Country Club lost pools, land and parts of their homes to the tremendous, abundant, rushing water.

Soon, one after another, roads and bridges began collapsing. Eighteen main roads were closed. This figure didn't include any of the roads that detained Sabino students. Roads such as: Tanque Verde at Houghton, Tanque Verde Loop, Tanque Verde at Pantano, and Sabino Canyon confined Sabinoans to their homes.

According to the Arizona Daily Star's interview with Charles Huckelberry, Director of the county's Department of Transportation and Flood Control District, "If you add the floods of '77, '78, and '80, and multiply by three, you'll get a comparable figure to this flood."

There wasn't only horrendous transportation damage, but problems with Arizona water systems. Not only were there homes without water, but relentless rain began causing contamination problems at local landfills.

What exactly caused this catastrophe? A cold front entered from the Northwest as a moisture-laden airmass entered from the Gulf of Mexico. The airmass was constricted between a major low pressure zone over Texas, causing one of the biggest floods of our time.

Tucson was fortunate.

Our citizens were able to take refuge. When adobe homes became only a heap of mud, service organizations came to the rescue of those in need. People from churches, Red Cross, Salvation Army, schools and many others aided the less fortunate.

Although the flood is over, many people will continue to pay an emotional toll.

Even though horrendous headlines appeared throughout the nation, it was said that very night, there appeared a quite magnificent sight, a glimmer of Noah and his ark, somewhere beyond that curtain of fright.

Football Players Defined

The Sabino football player. Just what or who is this elusive creature? I decided it was time to find out. For days, I roamed the crowded halls of our great school, randomly questioning bright-eyed female Sabers, asking them to describe the Sabino football player.

I received the usual answers such as "cute," as well as some desperate females gasping their admiration for the "gorgeous," "sexy" players with "beautiful bodies."

Some expressed themselves differ-ently, such as the junior who chose the words "stupid beasts."

One Saber summed up her feelings by saying, "It takes a unique person to be a Sabino football player, and God knows they're unique!"

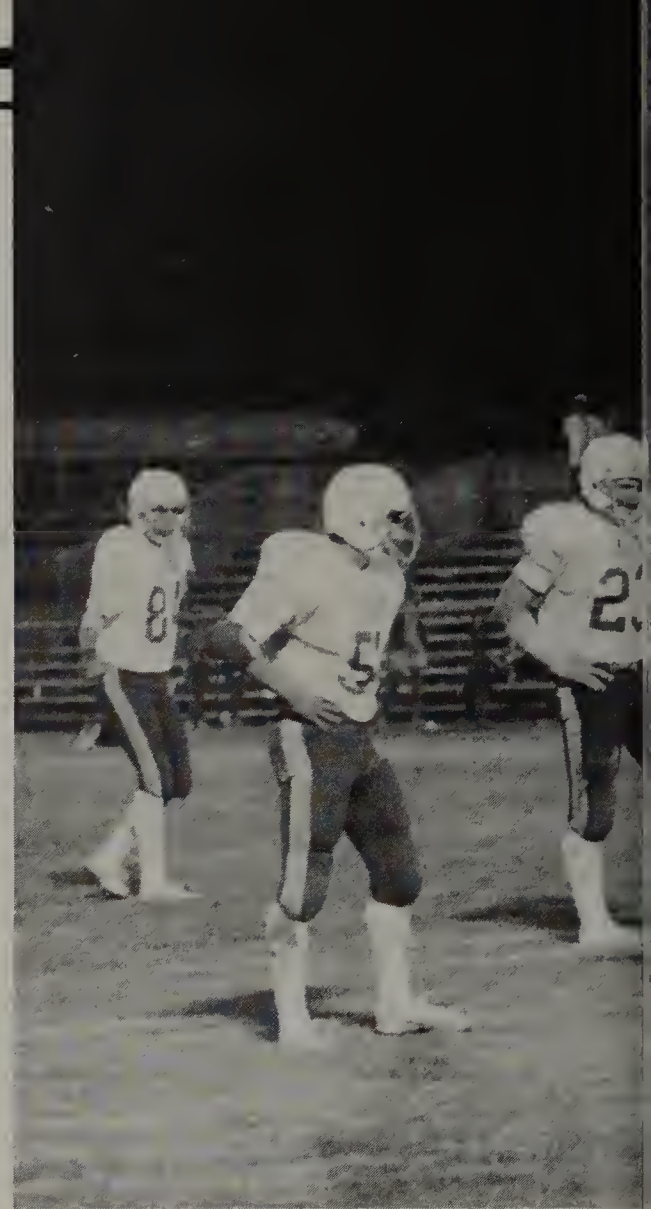

One word I never heard used to describe our players was perhaps the most important—dedicated.

All-City Players Lead An Enthusiastic Squad

This year's Varsity Football Team had a fairly successful season. They returned a large number of lettermen from the previous year. This gave them a great advantage over the other teams in the city. This advantage however, left them with a lot of teams after them. Two of the toughest teams in the city were really out get our mighty Sabers. The team was considered an underdog when they met the first of these two. This, however, did not stop them from pulling off a great and suprising upset over the Amphi Panthers. This victory set up the squad in the playoff race.

The season finally came down to one last game. Who else? Yes, you guessed it . . . SAHUARO. The Sabers were led by All-City players Chris Cooper, Dale McFarland, and Doug Penner. The team's head pilot, Coach Larry McKee, was coaching his last game. He left Sabino for a Vice-Principal position at Catalina High. There is no doubt Coach McKee and all his players went out in style.

Watching The Wheel Go 'Round

The wheel. How does it work? In football, each individual works as a strong, silver spoke to reach his goal. That's how it was this past year.

Motivation played a major role in the process of rotation, with the help of J.V. Head Coach, James Kirchberger and assistant, volunteer coach Jeff Feldman. Although the freshman spokes spun somewhat slower than the J.V., the team was led by head Coach William Bell, assistant Coach William Belt, and Emily Gray Coach Glen Evans. With him, Coach Evans brought over 20 new freshmen participants.

Because the freshmen faced few losses, Coach Bell was able to conquer his goals. Not only the customary task of a winning season was achieved, but he also succeeded in teaching the players the fundamentals and the skills of the game of football. Coach Bell also stressed the necessity of participants to become good citizens, avoiding the stereotype of a "typical athlete".

Coach Kirchberger's goals were evidently reached during the J.V. season. His goals consisted of "teaching the athletes the game of football", stressing grades, and reaching his top goal, "to have fun."

The wheel, now stronger than ever, will lead the Sabers to the road of success in the upcoming years.

Lizard Lassies Are Far From Last

Hard working. Devoted. Enthusiastic. These are just a few words to describe the 1983-84 Girls' Cross-Country Team.

With hope in their eyes and determination expressed on their faces, these girls contended against their stiff competitors and the blazing sun for victory.

The freshmen gave the team a big boost this year with Terry Hart, Tracy Herk, and Stacy Willis finishing in the top five.

By their side every step of the way was Coach John Brooks. He ran with the team during practices in order to see how well they were doing and what improvements needed to be made.

The girls' course was a challenging 2.2 miles. Brooks claimed that Sabino's course was the prettiest, but the most difficult.

The team members came back in better condition this year and as a result, were able to pull more speed which helped to make this one of their most rewarding seasons.

Lopin' Lizards Cross Country In Style

This year's Boy's Cross Country team was the largest in Sabino's history and was one of the largest in Tucson. It consisted of over 40 members, all trained and inspired by Coach John Brooks. This was Mr. Brooks' sixteenth year of coaching. Senior runner Jon Benson says, "Mr. Brooks is a great coach and he makes running enjoyable for all of us." Some of the top senior runners were Steve Bauer, Troy Murphy, and Daryl Lee, who was running for his first year. Tim Bentley and Ross Martin were two top runners for the junior class.

During the summer, these and many other dedicated runners got up for six a.m. workouts and then returned for more training at six p.m., five days a week. During the school year, varsity runners went from eight to ten miles per day in two workouts. This year's Cross Country team had stout competition, such as defending champs Santa Rita, and second place Palo Verde. Mr. Brooks said of the Boy's Cross Country this year, "This team has great depth and cooperation and they will go far this year." And they did, in style.

Girls' Swim Team Wet Behind The Ears

Girls' swim team coach Barry Roth says, "this year's edition of the girls' team is one of the youngest ever." The team was comprised of mostly underclassmen, with few juniors or seniors.

For these Sabino girls swimming is a year round sport, with summer league swim teams, school swim programs, and many on off-season swim programs. It is obvious that to be good one must be dedicated. These girls swim an average of 5000 to 6000 yards each practice, and start practices a few weeks before school, while most of us are still enjoying summer.

Two of these girls on the Sabino team have earned the status of All-American. These two are Tiffany Johnson, and Kim Toro, both seniors. With excellent performances they led their team to victory at most of their meets this fall.

The Saber girls looked very strong, with some of the swimmers' sights set on the Olympics. It's a good chance we might be seeing some of them in Los Angeles this summer.

Extra Dedication Brings Swim Team To Surface

What does being on the Sabino Swim Team mean? Many of us do not realize it means more than our afternoon swim in the backyard! Being on the team means swimming 8000 to 9000 yards a day. The swim team practiced five days a week in the afternoon and three days a week in the mornings. These morning practices were met with some of the usual early morning moans and groans. The coaches and the swimmers had great expectations before the season and proved it during the season. With over forty swimmers, they had the biggest and the best team ever at Sabino. The team looked for a position in the top three and possibly a state championship. To do well in the State meet a team must have great individual talent. Sabino had that talent this year with the possibility of having two or three All-Americans. To be an All-American is to be one of the top thirty swimmers in a certain event in the entire nation. Coach Kershner says, "To be great, one must have the ability to drive past agony everyday."

In Volleyball, We've Got It Together

"Go, fight, win" is the name of the game for volleyball. This year's varsity volleyball team were go-getters in every game they played, their spirits were high from the start until the finish. The coach, Debbie Taylor, has coached Sabino for two years. What she looks for in a volleyball player is skill, movement, motivation, and attitude. This year's team was younger than last year, consisting of two freshmen, seven juniors, and the team captain Duska Sahler, the only senior. Coach Taylor felt that this team was rebuilding; it has potential for the future, and that the team enjoyed working together as a team.

There they are, in a huddle. Suddenly, with high spirits, they yell out a Sabino cheer and roll out into their positions: The 1983-84 J.V. Volleyball team.

The first few games the team was nervous and their stomachs were full of butterflies, but they went for it and did their best. The one thing that kept the team trying harder and winning was the dedication and the fact that they wouldn't give up. This year's J.V. coach, Rhonda Benhase, has coached the J.V. team for two years. Coach Benhase said with thumbs up, "This team's the best I've had!" Alright Sabino volleyball.

The strategy of winning for both teams was to keep a positive attitude and to stick together. As Sabino looks back at the volleyball skills and team spirit, we know that they had it all together.

Golf Team Makes History With Members, Dedication And Spirit

Sabino's 1983-84 golf team had the most members in Sabino's history, sixteen; four being seniors. Out of these sixteen members only the top five played each week. Every week the team had 2 or 3 qualifying rounds and the best five scorers from the rounds played the following week.

The team showed much dedication through the three hours a day practice at 49'ers Country Club. The Sabers proved a better effort this year against their biggest rival, the Salpointe Lancers. "Mr. Learing tries to give all the golfers a chance to play," stated Perry Baker, junior. Despite the inexperience of the 1983-84 team, the Sabers can be praised for their tremendous effort and spirit.

Hoopsters Run It To The Rim

He goes for the layup. The fans go wild. It's another two points for the Sabercats, the two points we need to put us ahead. Looks like another victory for the 1983-84 varsity basketball team.

The team was young, with only two returning starters. Coach Tim DeMarchi stated that the team was of average height but above average motivation. In his words, "The team has a strong sense of unity and some of the best potential I've seen. I feel proud to have had the opportunity to coach them."

The players were driven hard all year, constantly testing their own limits; it showed on the court. They were disciplined and dedicated; they had to be in order to balance their grueling practices with heavy class loads.

This year, something was different and all Sabino knew it. With the discipline we saw displayed on the court, it was a team of unequalled supremacy.

Drive, Dedication, Determination!

What exactly goes into the making of a top, competitive varsity basketball player?

The commencement of an exceptional career always starts at the bottom. Like a ladder, one begins at the bottom and strives to reach the top. Where does the actual manufacturing of a basketball player begin?

With varsity competition in mind, both the frosh and J.V. coaches had the same goal. Fundamentals, fundamentals and more fundamentals. Frosh coach G. Legan and J.V. coach H. Krecklow agreed that fundamentals served as the most overriding objective. Not only were the basic fundamentals taught, but the athletes were expected to learn to play together, anticipate reactions and improve from week to week.

The J.V. team was able to grasp several victories due to the effort put forth. Although the frosh team didn't obtain many victories, they were "well-balanced," said Coach Legan.

The teams spent relentless hours practicing the new forms and new ideas. The teams captured that top rung because of their drive, dedication and determination.

Basketcats Make A Fast Break To The Top

Who were those power-driven girls playing on the court to their fullest ability? They were this year's Varsity Girls Basketball team, that's who.

This bunch of enthusiastic and hard working girls, instructed by Coach Bart, showed what the sport of basketball is all about. From pressing, to fast breaks, they held their competitors, working together as a unified team.

The team's strong support came from team captain Jenny Herron, senior, and Wendy Porter, junior. Both girls were returning first string players from last year.

Practicing every day after school, Saturdays, and even holidays, these girls worked to perfect themselves as a team with the ambition to win.

Though largely young and inexperienced, this year's J.V. team proved that they were winners also. Under the direction of obCoach Krecklow, the girls learned the fundamentals of basketball and how to work together as a unit.

Only three girls, Jackie Jamack, Lenore Wilsey, and Lori Stoft, were returning players from last year. The rest of the team was made up of new talent.

Talent, commitment, and chemistry—the three essential items a team must have in order to be successful. Sabino's Varsity and J.V. teams had all of these plus a lot more to lead them to the top.

Wanted: Disciplined Athletes For Wrestling

What is made up of nine of Sabino's finest athletes, with an eight year coach, and consists of pins, takedowns, and falls? The sport is wrestling, and the coach is Mr. Bell.

The year in wrestling started out very lean, with only six varsity wrestlers going out for the team. This presented a problem at meets and tournaments. Sabino never had a chance to win as a team, because they lost points for every weight class not filled.

With this in mind, Coach Bell still looked forward to a very good year for individual wrestlers. The hope that three or four of his wrestlers would make it to state was never far from his mind. His highest hopes were for senior Duane Boldt, junior Charlie Stein, junior Dan Smude, and sophomore Chris

Lyon, who placed 2nd in district.

In many schools wrestling is a popular sport. However, at Sabino, many guys will start out with high hopes, then quit because they aren't disciplined enough to stay with the team and meet the demands placed on them. Those wrestlers who do stick with wrestling learn to do it on their own and gain a confidence in themselves. They become disciplined.

All things taken into consideration, one must conclude that each wrestler is a winner in his own way and deserves the recognition for the time and the effort they devote.

Sabers Hold The Eyes Of The Competitors

Sore muscles and aching backs: a few of the inconveniences wrestlers had to deal with.

Wrestling is based upon individual strength and requires a lot of self-discipline; the kind of discipline that not many are willing to take on. Fortunately, this year many were willing and as a result, all of the weight classes were filled on the J.V. team and all but two on the Frosh team. Not only did this make the wrestling scores better, but also the wrestlers' attitudes because they were a "complete unit."

Coach William Bell is "very excited about the group," and feels that the J.V. members will break Sabino's tradition of having a small Varsity team next year. Mr. Bell attributes a lot of the freshmen's success to Asst. Coach Paul Ceceras, who is in his third year of coaching at Sabino.

Both the J.V. and Frosh teams show tremendous strength and ability for the upcoming years and have the potential to make Sabino's wrestling teams the teams to keep our eyes on in the future.

Serving Sabino With A Smile

Ball meets racket. Racket meets ball. A love is born. Twenty-two outstanding Sabino girls participated on Sabino's girls tennis team. Their new coach, George Brett, molded their acquired skill through many a strenuous practice. The track and the weight room was not new to these spirited Sabers. In order to prepare for the vigorous season, the girls played tennis outside of school all year round.

Amy Shelton and Sara Ryan were fortunate enough to be semi-finalists in the Randolph Invitational tournament.

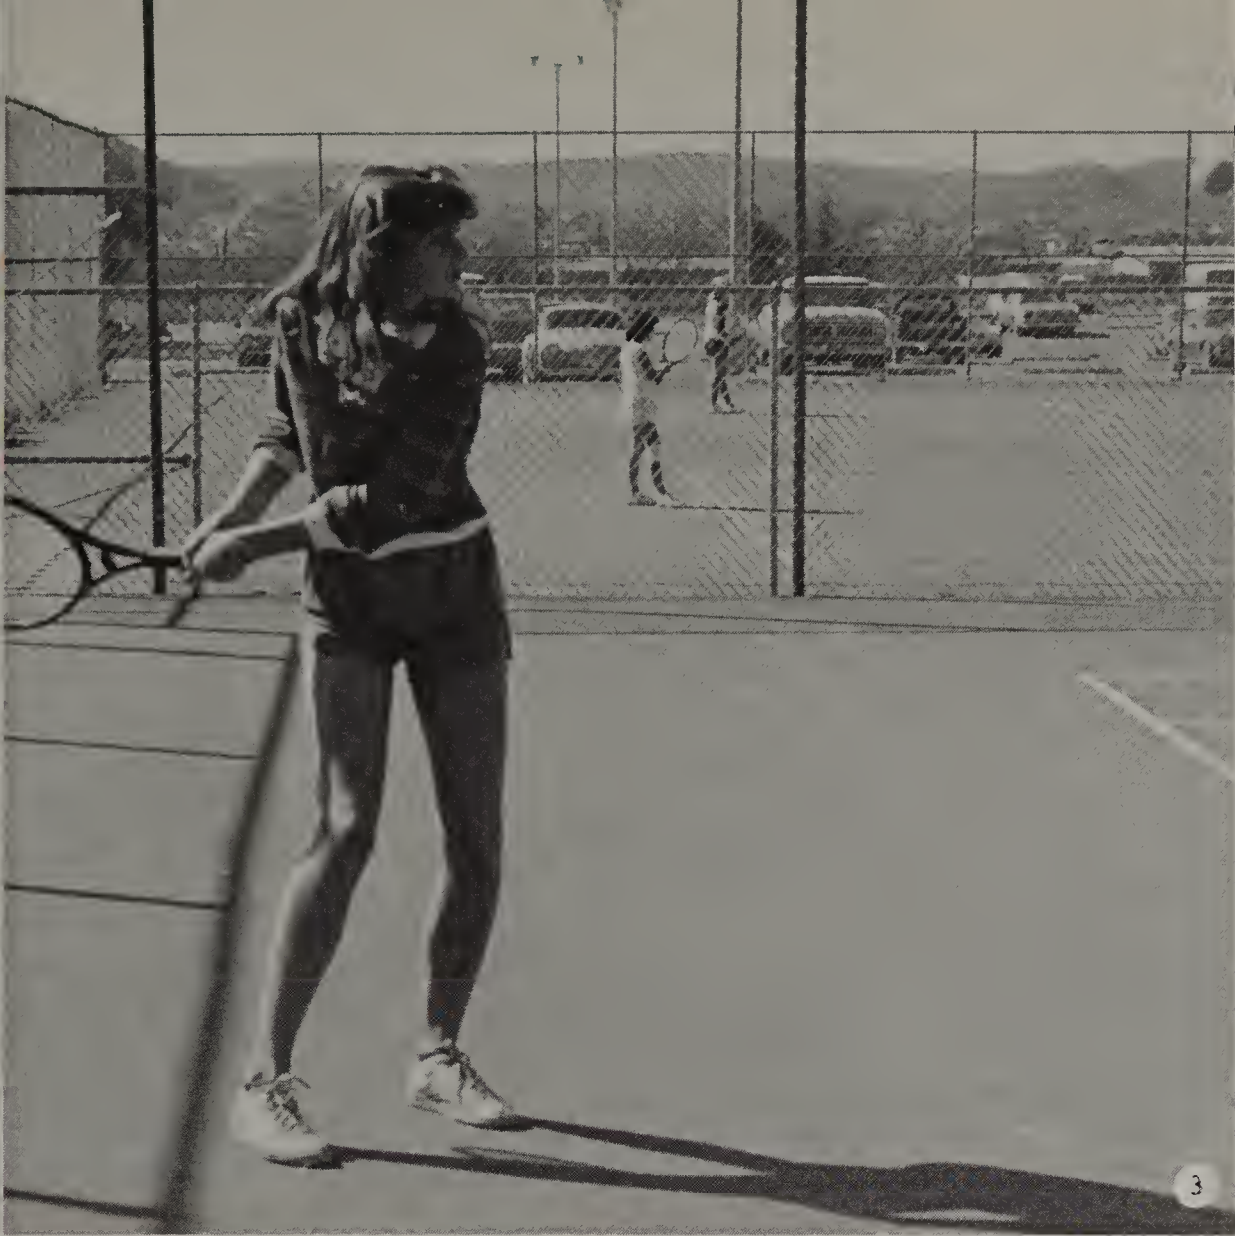

The Randolph Invitational is one of the largest high school tournaments in Tucson offered to both boys and girls.

The 1983-1984 Sabino girls tennis team honestly worked. They were out on the courts showing their stuff. Junior Sabrina Hoffman said, when asked about the team, "I think we all tried our best this season, making it a fun year."

Returning Boys Take To The Nets

This year's boys tennis team looked to be very strong, returning several players from the previous year. Some of these players include: Cary Ridenour, Frank Walker, Mark Becker, and Steve Deschamps. This added to the excitement felt during the beginning of the season. The tennis team started off extremely strong, so strong they even managed to sweep one opponent. This means all nine individual and doubles matches were won by Sabino Players. In a team match nine individual matches between the school takes place. Five singles matches and four doubles matches are played. The school that wins five or more matches wins the entire match. The team hoped to be ready for a very strong showing at various tournaments and most importantly the city tournament and the state playoffs. This year's team looked as if they would win several matches this year. The Sabino Netters are coached by Cliff Jewsbury.

Belt Buckles Down On Team

As American as apple pie, baseball has long been a popular sport, especially at Sabino where sluggers have launched college and even professional baseball careers.

Along with many returning players, the team fielded a new coach this year, Mr. Bill Belt. Belt, who had taken the Sabino softball team to the State playoffs this year, had wanted to coach varsity baseball since he'd been at Sabino. Belt had previously coached very successful J.V. teams. This year he did an outstanding job with the varsity squad. The team worked like a well oiled unit. Senior Daryl Lee said, "I've played baseball for 8 years and this is the most unified team I've been on."

Watch Out World Series, Here Come Our Cats

What does it take to make up a great team? Strategy, cooperation, determination and skill. These four words best describe our 1983-84 J.V. baseball team.

It turned out to be a whole different ball game when Coach Belt moved up to the Varsity team because Mr. Sicilian decided to devote his time to football. This year's team was coached by Mr. Art Acosta, who came to Sabino from Rincon, where he coached the school's baseball team. This is Mr. Acosta's first year coaching at Sabino.

Sabino gave the team support and hoped that this would be the year for the J.V. Cats. The determination in the team made it easier for them to be like a "family." Two long, tedious hours were spent each day on warmups, base sprinting, and other athletic skills, making it tough for the whole team, but they pulled through.

All in all, it was a great year for our Sabers. Way to go, Cats!

These Sabers Really Had A Ball

The Sabercat '83-'84 girls softball team was the strongest ever. These girls worked from winter to spring getting better with every practice. Four year veteran Duska Sahler said, "I believe one reason we played so well is because we're more like a family than a team."

But what does it take to be a Sabino softball player? Well, besides determination, fortitude, and hard work, it takes, according to Leslie Dempsey, "a positive mental attitude important to succeeding at anything."

These girls improved athletically, as well as socially. They learned to play with friends as well as playing alone.

These girls did a great job of representing Sabino on and off the field. So, look out in '85-there will be no stopping the saber softballers.

Trackers Run Proud To Finish Line

Practice makes perfect as many people say, and this year's girls track team proved the statement right. Coach Kirchberger and fifty girls helped to make the season a successful one. With determination, skill, and practices everyday, how could the team go wrong?

"I feel everyone should have a chance to take part with the team if they deserve to," commented Coach Kirchberger.

Sabino girls track had a quality no other team had enough of—talent. It took more than talent, though. The team worked hard, and fun, and gave it their best shot. These Sabers had expectations of doing things better, and, self-improvement.

The track team held practices after school everyday before the season even started. They worked hard to perfect their hurdle jumps, shot put throws, and the other skills that the Sabino girls track is known for. All the preparation and effort was required for their first meet on February 28, when Sabino demonstrated their great performance for all to see.

Track is an individual sport. Members of the team worked on their individual needs and accomplishments, yet these Sabers never forgot team unity. Together, as a team, they made Sabino stand proud as they ran to the finish line.

Just A Step Away From L.A.

The year: 1984,

The setting: A vast stadium of green with the familiar set-up hurdles, the high jump, long jump, shot put and discus.

The starting blocks are secured in the hot, black asphalt. The resounding echo of the starting gun releases the gold-driven athletes who have trained so long...that last turn...just a few more feet...the gold medal is in sight. Can he do it?

There's something unusual about this scenario. Could we be in Los Angeles as spectators for the 1984 Olympic Decathlon? Actually, the gold medalists consist of those athletes on the boys track team. J.V. and varsity alike captured medals of a more symbolic nature.

Second year coach Delbert Timper was assisted by a new face—that of Kurt Meracle. Together, they combined their efforts to insure the teams' excellence.

As for the future Olympians, Coach Timper claims, "The athletes gained physical and mental strength, as well as learned a strong technique of self-motivation."

Let's look ahead to the finish line:

The gold medal lies ahead...can he do it? He's done it!

And he's done it in style.

Gymnastics: Putting Your Mind To It

From a preparatory war exercise originating in ancient China, gymnastics has come a long way. It has developed from exercises and ceremonies to a competitive sport in events as large as the Olympics and as small as school competitions.

Devoting at least 2½ hours a day to the sport of gymnastics, 16 well-trained gymnasts practiced hard to develop their strength, agility, and grace. Although the team was a little behind at first, it was able to overcome its weaknesses and develop its strengths with a little faith. By the end of the season, each gymnast became strong, graceful, and proud through her attitude. True, a skilled gymnast must have some natural ability, but as Ms. Gruensfelder stated, "It's what you can put your mind to doing."

The team, by all means, put forth their best effort and did well, as was said by captain, Jennifer Lowell, "I think everyone had a lot of fun and did their best."

Unsung Heroes Keep Athletes Running Smoothly

Though seldom noticed, Sabino trainers were present at every athletic event that Sabino participated in. This year Sabino had five student trainers working alongside head trainer Jim Wallis. Contrary to popular belief, student trainers worked hard, putting in about five hours of work at least three days a week after school. Many trainers also worked on Saturday when the athletes came in to practice. This work included taping, rehabilitating and treating injuries, doing paper work, and cleaning up. Student trainers learned some physiology and anatomy but concentrated on the care, prevention and treatment of athletic injuries.

These students got involved in the school and gained experience toward career goals by becoming trainers. When asked about all the hours of hard work, the student trainers said "It's worth it!" Our unsung heroes are a vital part of the athletic program and deserve some recognition for keeping Sabino athletes running smoothly.

Lights, Camera Action! Entertainment is used for relaxation, humor, and sentiment. Entertainment was brought to Sabers through video as well as radio. Students were given the opportunity to see their favorite flicks and stars at local theatres, and video cassette recorders became a way to save money while watching these favorite movies. Results of the poll said that: "All The Right Moves" and "Flashdance" were the favorite flicks of the year. Sabers seemed to crowd to more theatres showing these films. Meryl Streep, Chevy Chase, and Eddie Murphy were the most enjoyed entertainers. They made more Sabers laugh, cry, and simply enjoy themselves.

What used to be limited only to radio now dominates television in the form of video. Sabers no longer had to listen to their favorite song, they could see it! MTV offered 24 hour videos. With its studio interviews, gossip, and concert information, MTV brought together stereo and T.V. in a way

Spirit Of The Foothills

Marching seventy-two strong, our school band once again kept football fans entertained with spirited music and fight songs. They started the season with songs like "Billy Jean", "Eye of the Tiger", "You Should Hear How She Talks About You", our traditional school song and expanded from there.

Besides playing at our games, the marching band also participated in the University of Arizona Band Day, the State Marching Festival, and the Mesa Community College Festival.

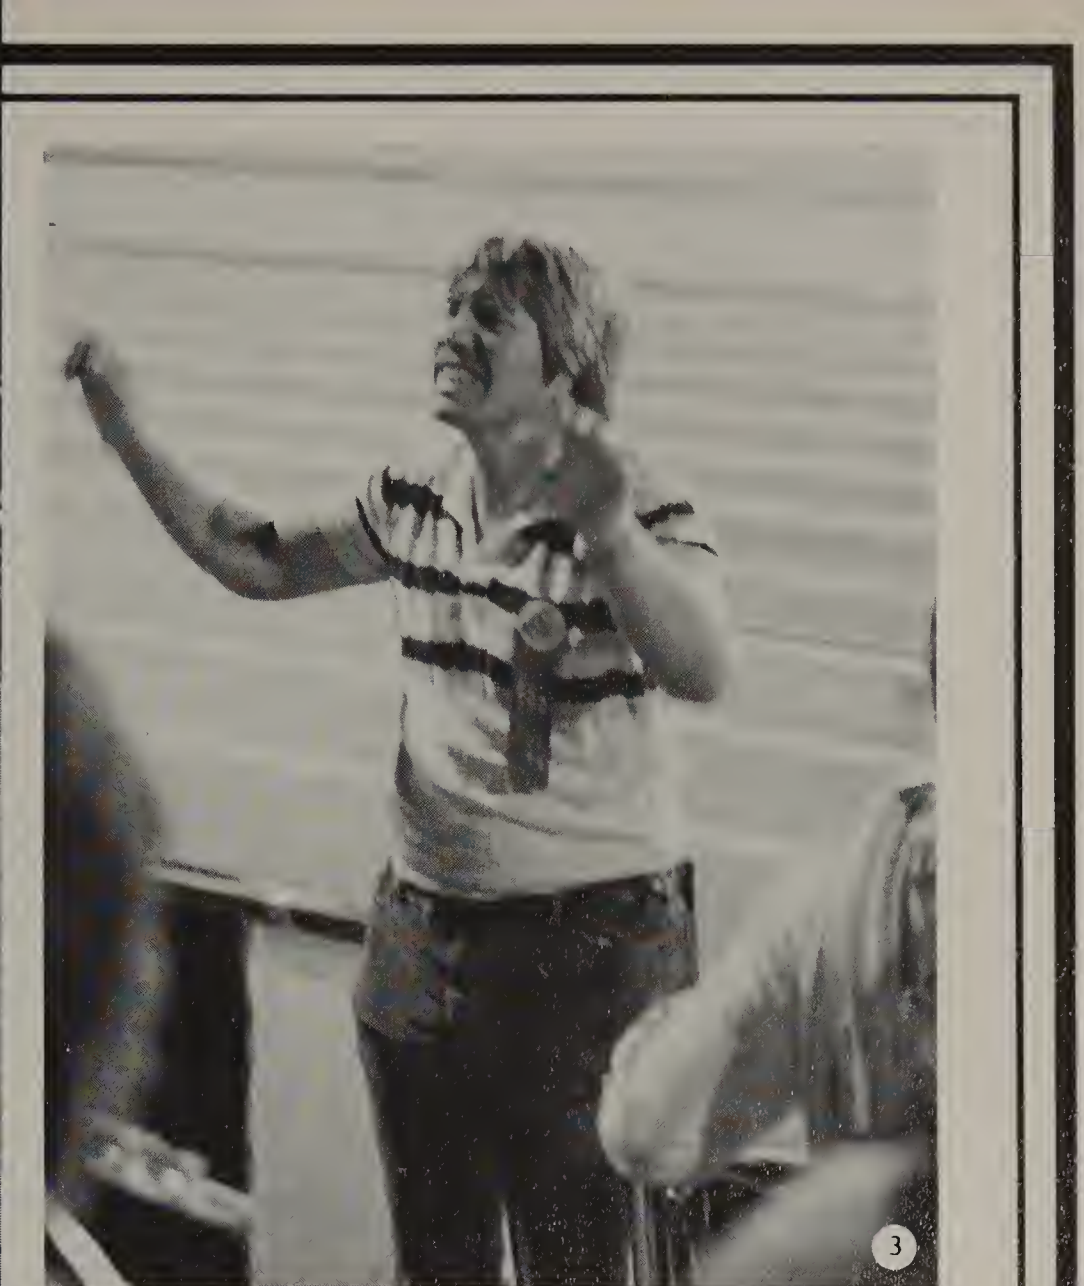

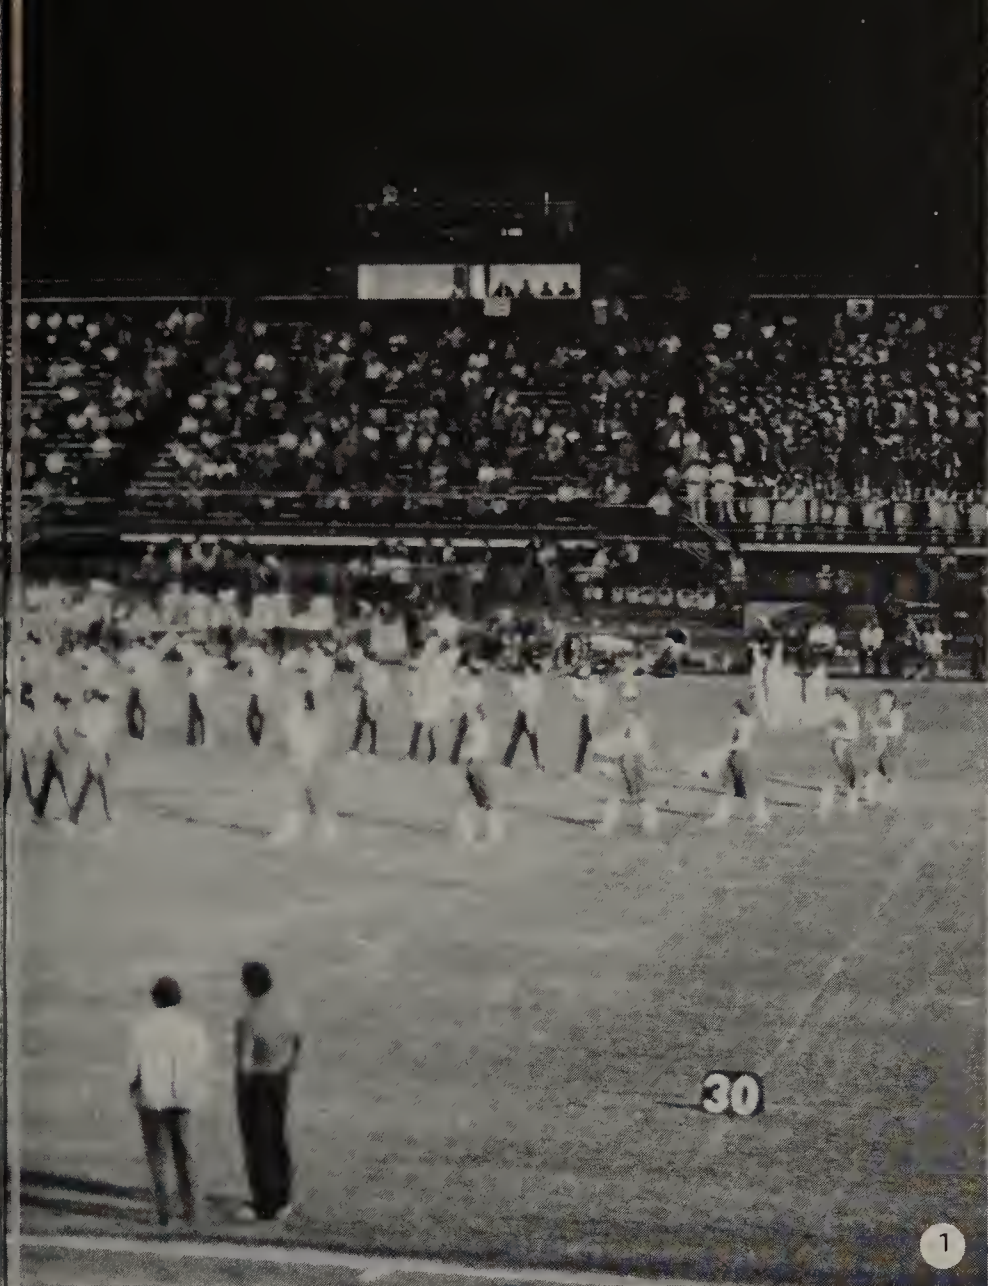

After the football season was over, the marching band became the concert band. They made the switch from marching music to concert music quick enough to hold a Christmas concert and to attend State and Regional Festivals last spring.

One of the biggest changes to the band this year was the new band leader, Mr. Rawdin, from Canyon Del Oro High School. They also changed their motto from "You Really Gotta Wanna" to the equally appropriate "Spirit of the Foothills".

Talent Proves Perfection

What do you get when you mix coordination, skill, and a dash of talent? The 1983-84 Colorguard and Twirlers. These girls put together a show that demonstrated their natural capabilities and dedication.

Gwen McCormick, captain, Amy Gigax, co-captain, and Michelle Katalinic, co-captain, used their own experience and know-how to make up routines and techniques. Together, the Corps decorated the field with purple and enhanced it with gold.

Darci Rould and Varina Bracamonte showed their courage with twirling routines that included fire and knives. During many hours of practice for the Friday night shows, these girls proved that they were willing to twirl up the road of success.

The Colorguard and Twirlers strived for the perfection that has always been a quality of their own. Their shows proved they worked for the best and kept the reputation that Sabino is proud of.

The Spirit Was Hard To Beat

It wasn't all glitter, sparkle, and smiles. It was hard work, plus exuberance and school spirit. But it was also practice, practice and more practice. Together all of these qualities lent themselves to the letter-perfect co-ordination of Sabino's Songleaders.

Through thick and thin, the spirit was hard to beat. Kim Modica, co-captain for the past year, was particularly enthusiastic. "Even in the rain, we had a lot of fun."

The dances were not the brain children of the captains only. Input from the girls to co-captains Kim Modica and Brenna Thompson, was essential for the creation of a new and unique routine. The average was a new dance each week.

Added Kim, "Being a Songleader is difficult, but it is a great way to get to know more people in your school. This year's team really worked together well."

The work load was strenuous, with practices most days and even some weekends, but the output was rewarding. The Songleaders were an important part of Sabino's tradition; a large portion of spirit that was hard to beat.

Cheerleading: A True Symbol Of Spirit

As the 1983-84 cheerleaders found out, being a cheerleader isn't always the glamour that it's known for. They learned that it required hard work, dedication, and a willingness to work with others in order to cheer Sabino's teams on to victory and raise the level of school spirit.

Working along with the songleaders at many games, the two groups decorated the players' lockers and participated in some hall marches with the band on Fridays. There were many times when they had to stay for long practices after school, and were required to perfect a new routine in as little time as a week.

Taken for granted at some times, what would that Friday night game be without the cheering and yelling heard from the sidelines? As a symbol of school spirit, this year's cheerleaders found out that it was worth the sweat and tears shed; and that the memories were plentiful.

Cheering For Enthusiasm

S-A-B-I-N-O. Go Go Sabino! These sounds were heard every Thursday night at the home football games for freshman and junior varsity football players, and every Tuesday and Friday night for the junior varsity basketball players.

Under the direction of their sponsor, Ms. Huxford, the cheerleaders cheered at all the games and were always full of energy and pep. The J.V. Cheerleaders participated in the pep assemblies, made posters, decorated the outside of the players' lockers and were known as the players' secret sisters. They had twice as much to do since there was no longer a freshman cheerleading squad.

Beginning two weeks before school, the J.V. Cheerleaders practiced diligently to get a head start on learning their routines. Once school began they continued their practice every day during first hour to perfect the minor flaws in their routines.

Captain Becky Berschauer and Co-Captain Amy Tritz kept the team and crowd enthusiastic throughout the football and basketball seasons. Their energy is what makes Sabino the best school in town.

They Are Small But Spirited

What is small in number but big in spirit? The answer is the 1983-84 Wrestlerette Squad.

The squad, the smallest to date with only six girls, had to cheer twice as loud and have twice as much enthusiasm in the wrestling meets. This wasn't a challenge for them, as they had previously won two out of the five categories in a Phoenix competition for the Most Enthusiastic and Most Spirited.

The Wrestlerettes promoted enthusiasm among the wrestlers through a secret brother program. Each girl had a brother or brothers for whom they did special things, including making treats, or signs to wish them luck in their meets.

The Wrestlerettes also had fund raisers to help pay for their uniforms which each girl had to buy herself.

The girls, supervised by William Bell, had to endure their busy schedules of practicing after school three times a week, plus cheering at wrestling meets twice a week. It may have been rough, but their work paid off in their performances.

Playing The Best With Less

Intensity filled the air. The crowd silenced, all eyes concentrating with wonder. Hearing mixed sounds of strings and woodwinds, the audience knew the time had arrived for an unforgettable performance by the Sabino orchestra.

Conducted by Ms. Pierce, Sabino's new orchestra director, the orchestra presented many successful and memorable performances. People all over Tucson were treated to these superb performances, which were performed alone and with other orchestras from neighboring schools.

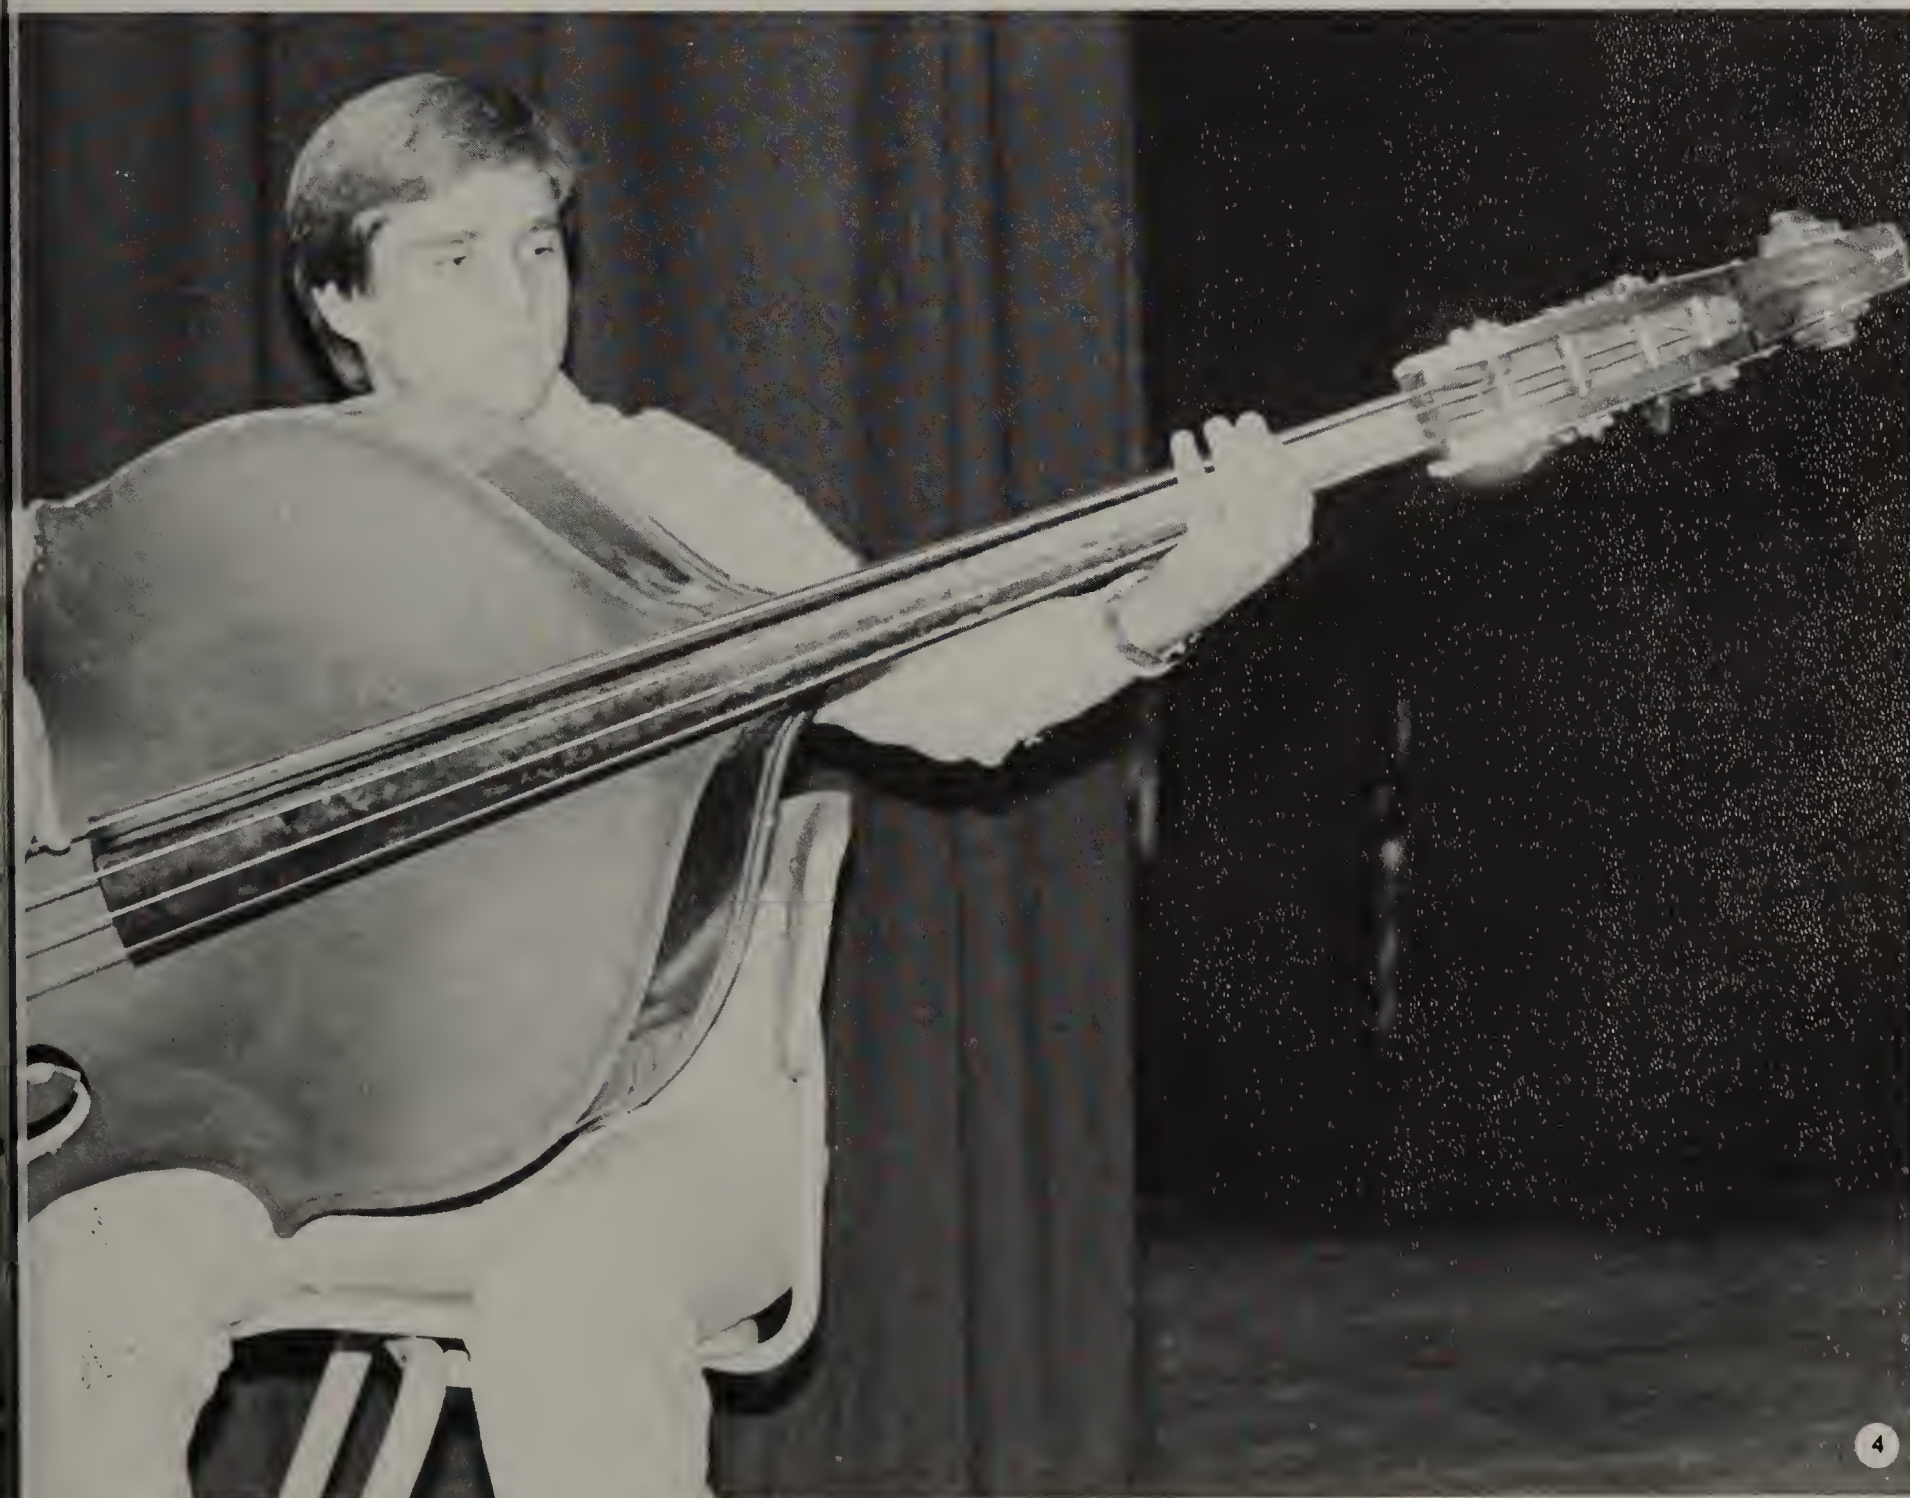

Orchestra students practiced diligently each day second period in order to be able to participate in performances such as NAU Commencement, Regional Orchestras, Regional Auditions, and All State and All Star Competitions, as well as for personal satisfaction. Along with the hard work always came the enjoyment and excitement after a performance. It was never known what they would be up to next.

The orchestra, consisting of only 15 students, made the best of what they had. "The orchestra is small, but good," complimented Ms. Pierce. No matter the size, we have been well represented this year by a great orchestra.

Choir Perfects The Sound Of Music

The new choral director, Mr. Richard Franz, had high expectations for the 1983-84 choirs. Sabino's three choirs and the ensemble presented a fall, Christmas, and spring concert and participated in the All City Concert Choir Festival. Individuals from the choirs took part in various competitions such as the Solo and Ensemble Festival, Jazz and Madrigal at NAU, Pima Ensemble and Regional and All-State Choirs.

One choir member said of the past year, "Mr. Franz expected alot of us!" These high expectations and the dedication of all the vocalists showed up in many outstanding performances.

Curtain Call

The first curtain call for the Sabino Drama Department was the play "Blithe Spirit." Ms. Corcoran along with her action theatre class worked for six long, hard weeks to produce this successful play.

Not only three plays were produced this year by the drama Department, but they also worked on physical exercise, dance, television acting, and directing plays.

The Drama Department offered a variety of classes; Action Theatre, beginning drama, intermediate drama, and advanced drama with over 120 students involved.

Ms. Corcoran has quite a following, with several students who have been in her drama classes for the past six years.

Sabino's Drama Department offers a showcase of intriguing young talent. Will the curtain call be for one of these talented performers in the future?

Clubs That Affect Our Futures

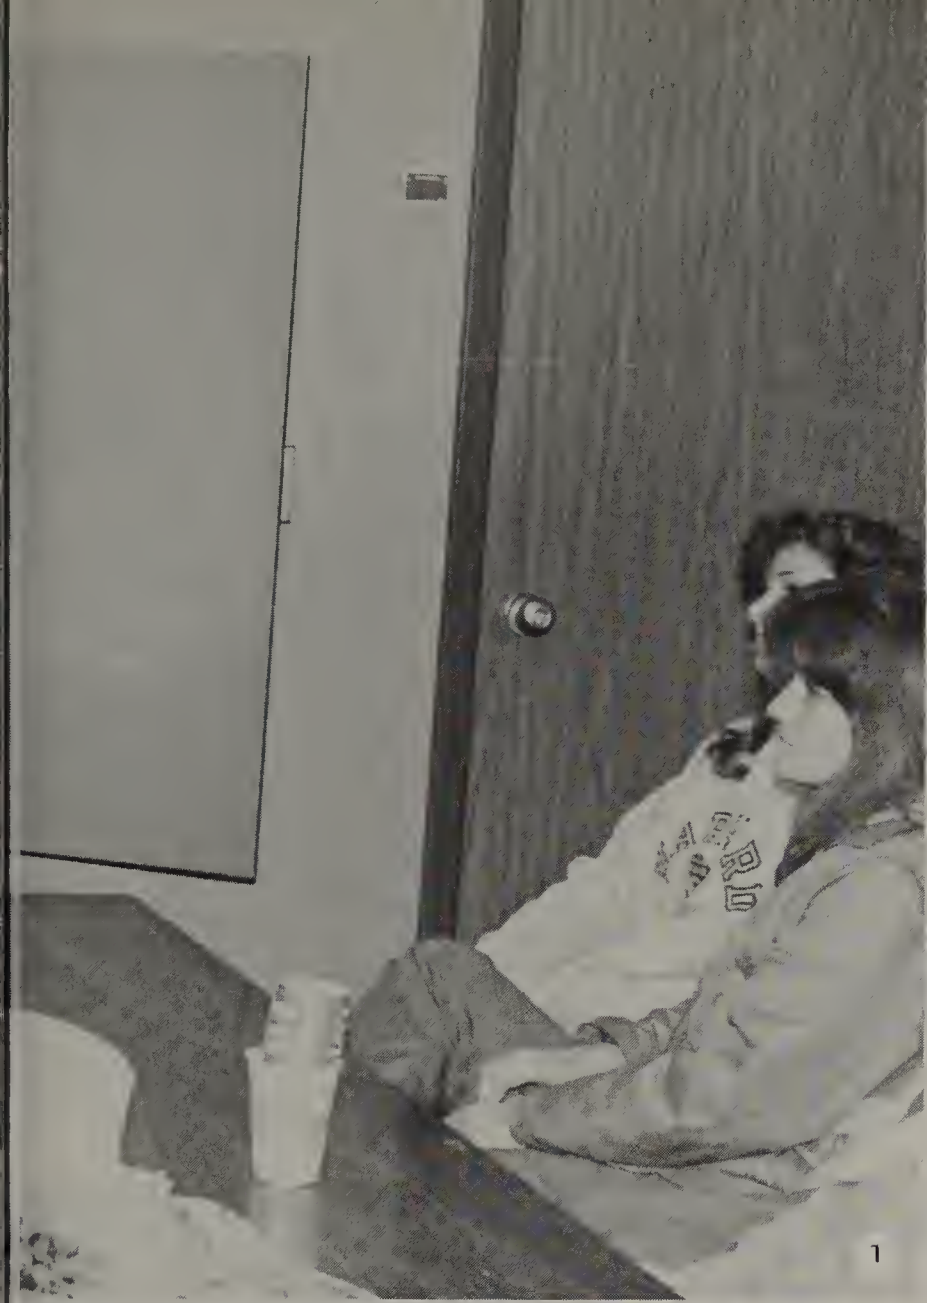

There is an association here at Sabino that is worth knowing about. It is called the Student Advisory Council (SAC). SAC is a district-wide student government, with four students elected from each school. This year the Sabino representatives were Brenda Haas, Pete Murrieta, Jerry Sundt, and Julie Berry. These students attended school board meetings, presenting the opinions of Sabino students. Some issues they covered were the weighted grade system and the evaluation of teachers.

Medical Explorers is a club that any student interested in the medical field can join. They met on Wednesdays at El Dorado Hospital. They saw video tapes and listened to guest speakers about different areas and aspects of the medical field. The members of the Medical Explorers visited specialized areas of the hospital and were able to gain a broader understanding of medical procedures. Medical Explorers also provided an exposure to medical facilities.

Photography Focuses On Students

Exposure, shutter speed, zoom lenses, cartridges, lens caps, fixer, developer, grain focuser, filters. What does all this mean? Most of us would be totally lost; however, the students in Mr. Scott's photography classes are right at home with this photog terminology. Photography was offered first through fourth period, with a Photo Journalism class offered during fifth period. The students in those classes were taught the various aspects of good photo taking. The advanced classes were responsible for most of the pictures used in the school newspaper and the yearbook. The school has thousands of dollars in photography equipment. The dark room and photo lab are very well equipped. The photography courses offered at Sabino have produced some very fine photographers. This year was Mr. Scott's first full year at Sabino. He filled in at the end of last year for an ill Mr. Berton.

Vista Packages Moments In Print

As the end of the school year rolls around, students look forward to receiving and signing yearbooks. The yearbook is abundant in pictures and articles documenting the school year as it happened. It showed who and what Sabino was made of and the pride that accompanied it.

Standing behind the covers was a staff made up of 24 writers and 11 photographers. This dedicated group of students worked non-stop from September to mid-March, sacrificing some of their free time, to get stories and photographs in by deadline. There were days when production was at its highest level and days when time was used to get additional projects accomplished.

Under the guidance of Dave Scott, photo and yearbook advisor, editors Karen Krapa, and Susanne Bartlett gave staff members the initiative to work under pressure when necessary, and they could come up with a pleasant comment or smile to those they worked with.

So next time you open your own yearbook, and see the smiling faces of your friends, a picture of the Homecoming game, or a story about how special Sabino is, remember the people who did it all for you; your VISTA yearbook staff.

Cat Tracks Covers Sabino Year

This year's Cat Tracks staff was the best ever. It consisted of fifteen hard working staff members, with Mrs. Jones as their advisor. There were seven returning seniors this year, including Editors-in-Chief Sarah Tobin and Wendy Leonard; Associate Editors Missy Mallory, Karen Bressler, and Kat Leis; typesetter Sally Tubaugh; and ad manager Kelly Escobar. These and eight other staffers worked long hours to meet their monthly deadline. This year Cat Tracks had its own photographer, Geof Findley.

Beginning Journalism was a prerequisite for all new staffers. The Cat Tracks staff felt that this year's new format led to more organization. Instead of specializing in one certain area, the staffers got varied assignments this year to round out their writing experience. Senior Missy Mallory says of Cat Tracks, "Being on the staff sometimes meant long hours and hard work, but it was always very rewarding when the work was done."

On The Road To Success

Sabino had a select crowd of 148 members. These distinguished members of the upper classes proved beyond a shadow of a doubt that they were true scholars.

The National Honor Society was not only Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors with a good grade point average, they were students with promise. The Top 25 Seniors, chosen for superlative grades, had their hard work pay off by special recognition at the graduation ceremony.

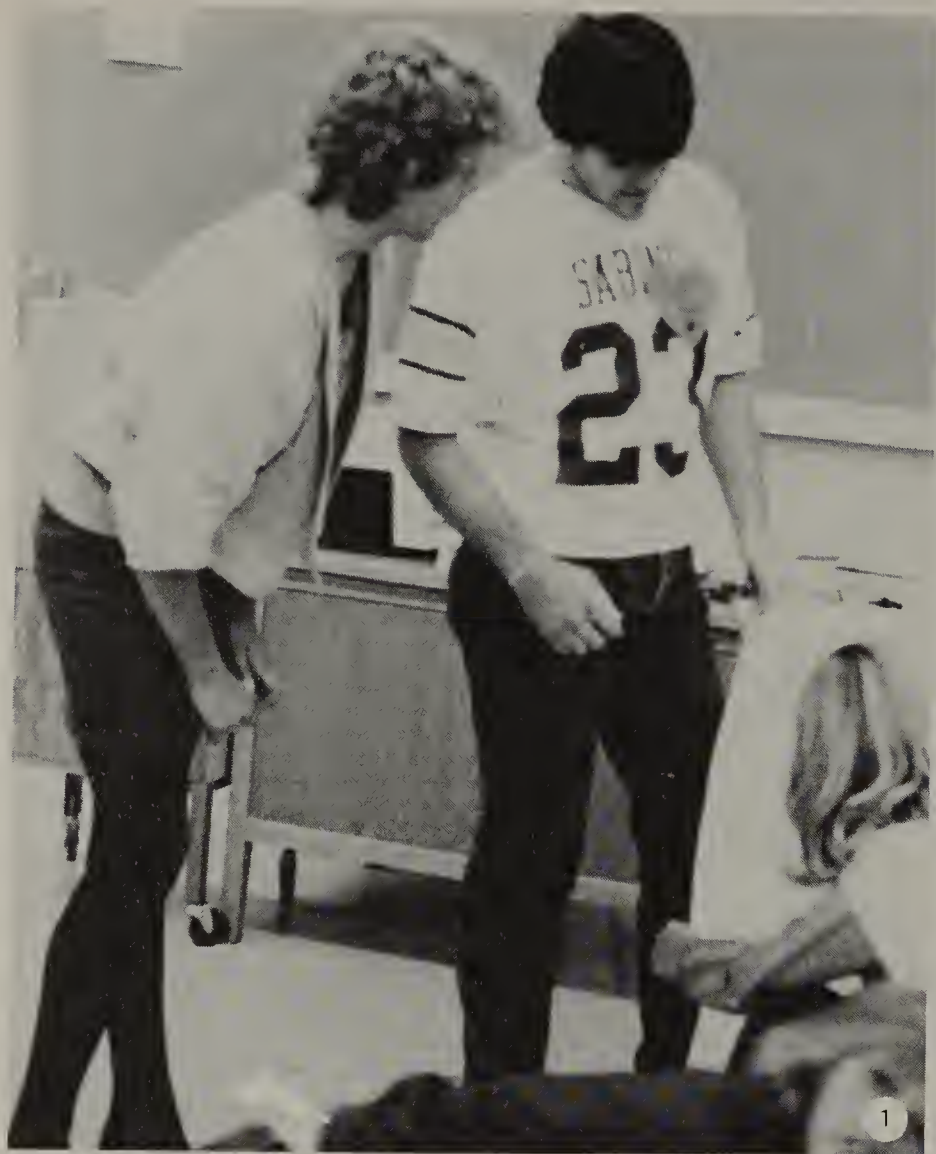

For the junior class, there was the distinct honor of being chosen as a Boys'/Girls State member. These students, judged on leadership abilities, were recommended by their teachers and counselors. By developing their own state, they were able to learn the ropes of government.

The ability to work hard and reach high was shown by these students in their quest for success.

Council Organizes Fun, Spirit

Why was Student Council offered at Sabino? To give students a course to substitute for Social Studies? No, Student Council was present at Sabino to allow students to experience the real feel of how government works. The council was in charge of many activities. This year they organized one of the best Homecoming spirit weeks the senior class was ever involved in. They were responsible for planning, arranging, and participating in the various activities included in the student life at Sabino High School. Our council was something we all should be proud of, and support. We as students gave them the power to represent us, and we should and did give them a student body that they could be very proud of this year. They also represented us out of town at various state-wide meetings. Let's remember the purpose of the Student Council and be glad they did such a great job at Sabino this year.

Speech And Debate: No Loss For Words

Oratory, Extemporaneous, Impromptu, Expository. These terms were very familiar to members of Sabino's Speech and Debate Team. Sabino's squad was 65 members strong, and the best in school history, according to Mr. Robert Best, squad coach.

The squad had 12 tournaments this year, and won second place trophy at the Buena Statewide Tournament. Speech and Debate, unlike other teams, has a year-round season. The team this year was very young, but had a lot of depth, with many underclassmen expected to return next year.

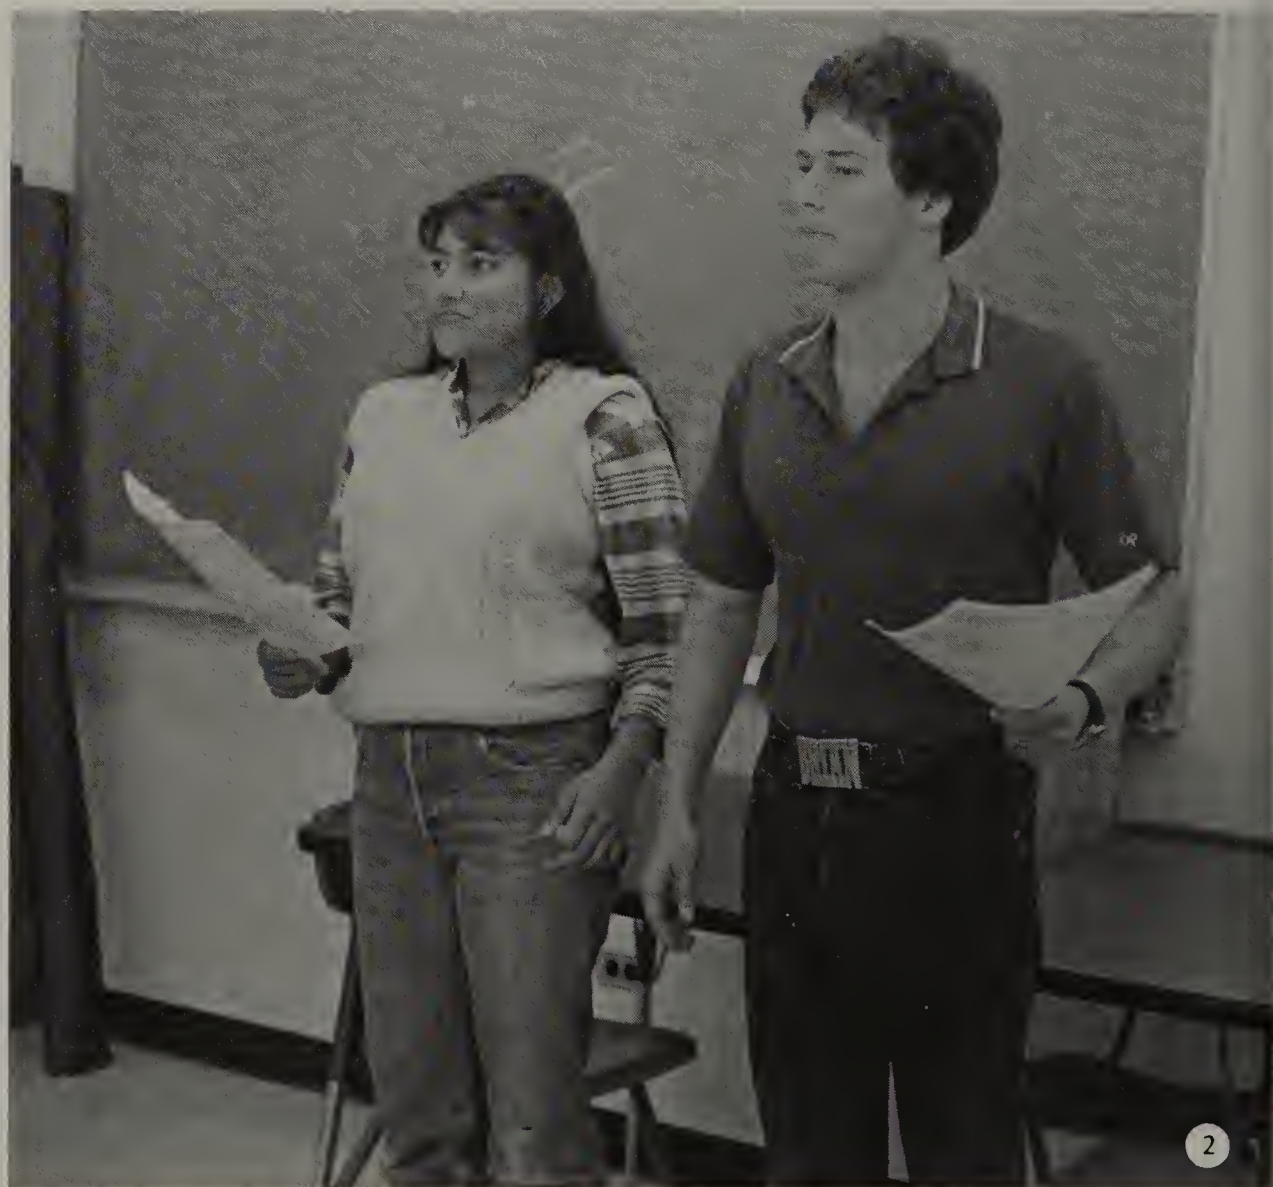

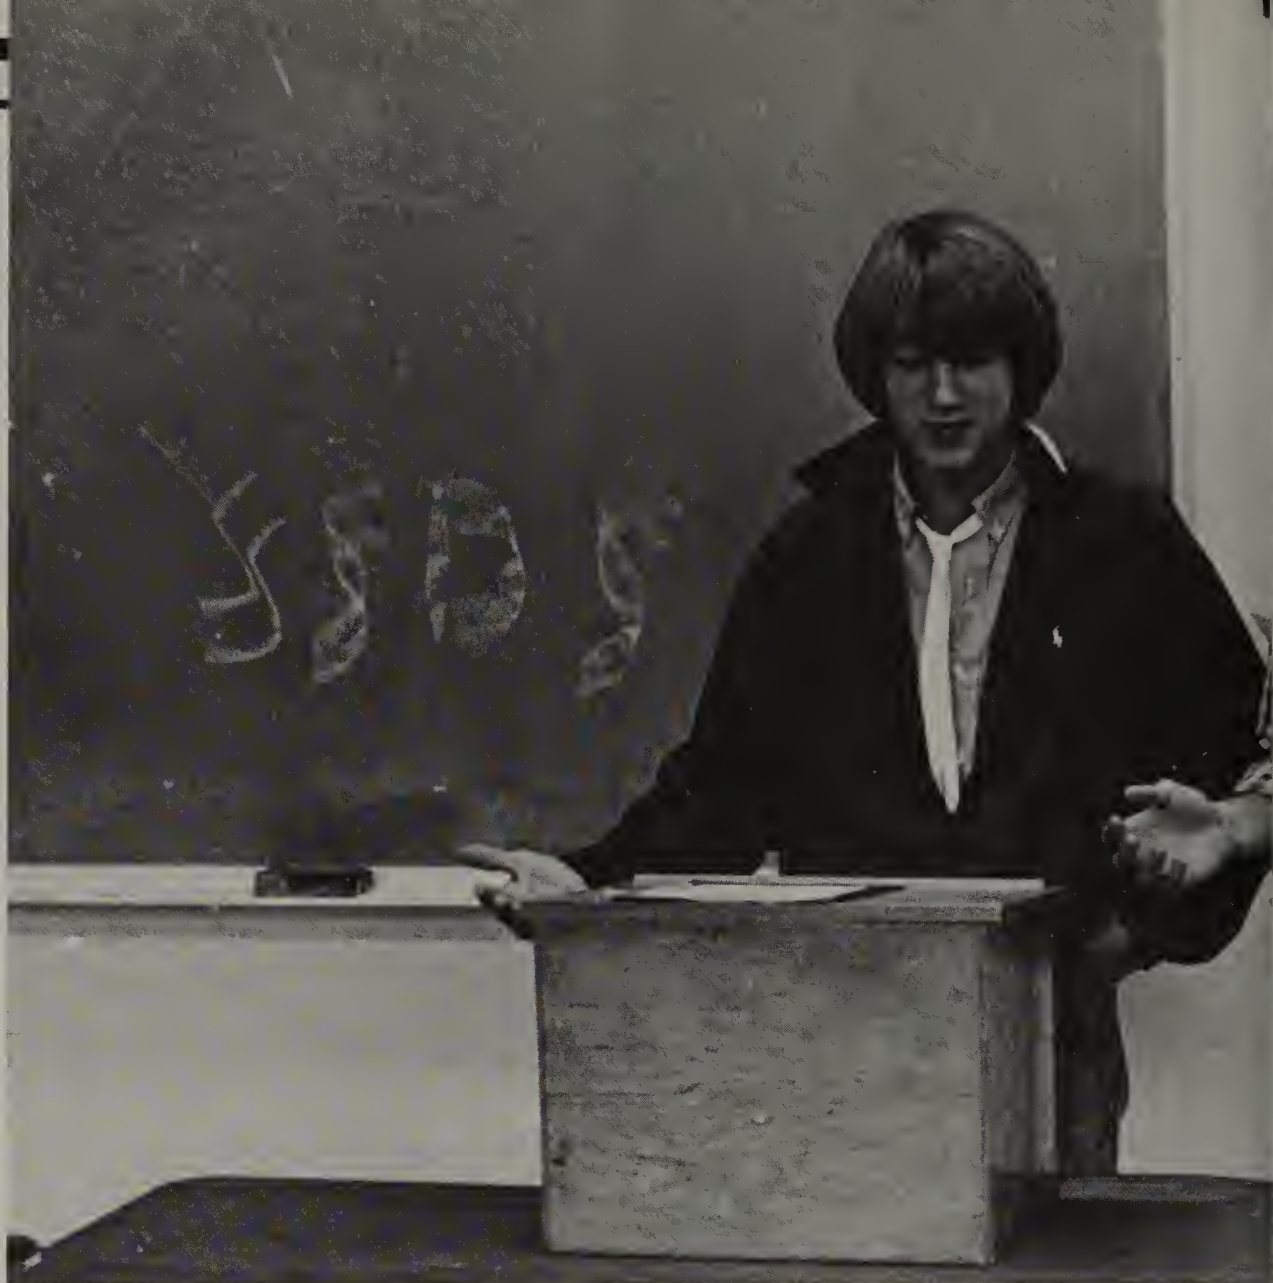

The team provided great experience for public speaking, confidence, and was very fulfilling. Senior member Denise Luxenberg added, "Mr. Best is the Best."

The competitions featured four categories of speaking events, five categories of oral interpretation, standard two-person debate, and of course the Lincoln-Douglas debate.

So take a chance; join the squad next year. The work is hard, but the ultimate benefits are rewarding.

Clubs That Touch The Real World

Thanks to Mr. Urban, this year's Model United Nations Club was no less than a success. It was more organized and there were more materials to use. The Model U.N. primarily has several members assigned to the countries of the world. These members act as ambassadors with the country's views. Depending on the ambassador's skills, they may win awards at the University of Arizona. These students may end up working two hours a week before an important competition in January. Lisa Richardson, club president said, "We have a lot of fun in Model U.N. working together and solving world problems."

"People helping people is what it's all about," said Carol Spence from Jr. Civitan. This club name comes from the Latin word "civi" which means people. Jr. Civitan assists the Association of Retarded Citizens (ARC) and the Special Olympics through a lot of fund raising and volunteer work. This group, having approximately forty members, knows the meaning of the word "work." What's the only requirement you need to join Jr. Civitan? According to Meredith Lockett, club president, "You just gotta care about people."

Sabers Do It In The Mountains

Sabers flocked by the dozens to the higher elevations to relieve tension and enjoy the outdoors.

The hiking club, under Mr. Legan, enjoyed a variety of activities. Although the Colorado River canoe trip was canceled, there were still many areas closer to home to be explored. Sabers slithered through the mud caves of Peppersauce and hiked through beautiful Aravaipa Canyon. Some conquered Tanque Verde Peak. While these Sabers enjoyed climbing mountains, many were descending at a high velocity.

The skiing club, under Mr. Roth and Mr. Johnson, enjoyed longer trips farther from home. Christmas vacation provided ample time to visit three different areas in Utah. Telluride, Colorado was the site for radical skiing action during Rodeo vacation.

Through the hiking and skiing clubs, many Sabers found happiness in the mountains.

Looking Toward The Future

The 31 members of DECA, Distributive Education Class of America, were employed in the community and received actual "on the job" training from their employers. These varied job experiences helped members decide on future careers. DECA officers for 1983-84 were: Susan McCrumb, President; Gidget Miller, Vice-President; Mike Kirkpatrick, Secretary; Donna Parrish, Treasurer; Moreen Ferdie, Historian. DECA sponsor was Mr. Zeidman.

Jobs for Arizona Graduates, taught by Mrs. Lash, was specifically designed for seniors planning to enter the work force immediately following high school graduation. Among the many skills seniors learned were how to write resumes, how to fill out job applications, and how to successfully interview for a job. The 1983-84 officers for JAG were: Andy Nixon, President; Randy Buono, Vice-President of Administration; Leslie Lambert, Vice-President of Finance; Tim McCaffrey, Secretary; Mark Bentley and Becky Bender, Senators.

Every Monday afternoon 30 members of the Sabino Bowling Team, coached by Mr. Sturm, practiced at the Tucson Bowl. Sabinoans were victorious in the Christmas Tournament played against Santa Rita and Palo Verde. The officers for 1983-84 were: Bob Savage, President; Bill Gates, Vice-President; and Tim Clark, Secretary.

Ah . . . To Be Young And In Love

Jane and Harvey. Yes they've finally made a date. After what seemed like endless weeks of dropping hints to friends and impatiently waiting for results, it's happened: Jane's best friend heard from another friend that some girl in her chemistry class (who liked Harvey) was whispering to another girl that she overheard Harvey asking one of his friends if he knew of anyone who might have Jane's phone number because maybe he was thinking of giving her a call sometime.

It looks like the start of a beautiful relationship.

Now it's 6:30, Friday night. The Date is set to start at 7:00. Just what is going through the minds of our two young romantics? Let us zoom in on them for a behind-the-scenes look . . .

Jane's

Jane has been looking in the mirror now for close to an hour. She's about to throw a fit—one curl right there in the front just WILL NOT curl the right way. There. Finally, it's almost right. She sprays half a can of hair spray on it just to make sure. She puts on just a little more blush, for the fifth time. As she agonizes over a wrinkle in her blouse, she wonders how she'll be able to apply her lipstick after dinner. She can't think of that now; he'll be here any minute! Her heart starts pounding. Wait, she's got to check her hair again. Is she too dressed up? Her mom and dad beam as she walks into the living room.

"You look so cute!" they say.

"Look, I've never looked worse in my whole entire life, okay?"

Jane hears his car pull up and reminds her parents not to say anything stupid like they always do. The doorbell rings. Jane takes a deep breath and thinks, "God, please let me think of something to say . . ."

Harvey's

Harvey checks his watch. There is no way on God's green earth he's going to make it on time. That's okay; she probably won't be ready anyhow. He goes to his closet and picks out one of his nicest shirts to go with his new Levi's. Never mind that his Nikes are gray instead of white. They've got character. He checks himself out in the mirror, thinkin' he looks mighty fine. Then he looks again. Oh God, he thinks, I'm not her type; she'll think I'm a dumb clod. His palms start to sweat. It's time to leave. It takes him about fifteen minutes to find the directions to her house. Harvey gets into his parents' beat up old Datsun and wishes he drove a Z28. On the way, he wonders how much money she's expecting him to spend on her. But the worst is yet to come—he's still got to meet her parents. Just act cool, he thinks, everything's cool. He pulls into her driveway, gets out and walks to her door. Taking a deep breath, he rings the doorbell and thinks, "God, please let me think of something to say . . ."

Heaven Is 1987

Confusion marks the first year at any new school. Freshmen have a dilemma: nobody knows what to expect. Strong representation is necessary to relieve confusion and unite the class. This representation was provided by: Mark Kahwaty, president; Tracy Herk, vice-president; Stacy Willis, secretary; and senators Brenda Falk, Terry Gallegos, Rachel Saull, and Andy Simmons. Their leadership was a major contribution to the success of the Class of '87.

Meaningful Fun

Every week, 70 Sabino students gathered together for a friendly fellowship. The purpose of this gathering was to bring religion back into their lives. This is the main purpose of Younglife; to get kids to have a personal relationship with God.

Usually meeting at a long-time members house, they participated in fun-filled activities invented by the group leaders, sang songs in perfect unison, and generally got to know each other a little bit better.

Many trips were planned. Younglife members could be found skiing the slopes of Sunrise, attending Woodleaf (a camp in California) during the summer, and always having a good time.

The end result of Younglife implanted many fond memories and relationships that will last a lifetime.

“ . . . A Perfect Mix - Sabercats And '86.”

Who are those bright-eyed Sabers wandering through the Sabino halls full of spirit and pride? Yes, you guessed it. It's the sophomores.

The poster sale and the Christmas flowers were great fund raisers along with Santa and Gobble grams. Spirit rates high with the class of '86.

Senator Scot Johnson said when asked about the sophomore class, "Our class is packed with talent ranging from academics to athletics; a perfect mix-the Sabercats and '86."

Helping Others

Lights, camera, action! Drama is more than a theatre performance. Acting is much more involved than script memorization and which lighting is best. Dedication and hard work is what it is all about.

Art Almquist, Bessie Glorioso, and Michelle Morse have the love of acting as a human nature. These dedicated drama students are involved in Matrix Team Theatre, directed by Harry Kressler. These actors go to different schools to prevent drug and alcohol addiction. The students involved in Matrix Team Theatre help other kids from experiencing situations that could change their lives.

Even though hours of social life may be sacrificed through Matrix, students feel that it is worth it. The actors of the Matrix Team know that helping others is what it's all about.

1985 Is Alive

Traditionally, the Juniors are the most competitive class. To maintain their standing, strong representation is necessary. This was accomplished by the Junior class officers. Veteran officers included Mary Bingham, class president; and senators Julie Berry and Jim Gillespie. Newcomers Holly Platt, vice-president; Lori Hoffman, secretary; and senators Tracy Tepper and Lisa Muth contributed fresh ideas to the staff. Junior class activities included frequent candy sales to raise money for the prom and occasional parties. Anticipating the next plateau was a major strength of the class of '85.

Exchanging Experiences

Would you leave all your things behind, except your few necessities, and come to a new country just for the experience? Three students here at Sabino did, and were proud of it. Representing different countries in Europe, Andrea Beneati (Italy), Brigitte Aangenendt (Holland), and Yohan Bergman (Sweden) traveled hundreds of miles to live an experience above all others.

Arizona has accepted 15 different foreign exchange student programs, 3 of which were represented here. Coming to Sabino was hard at first, but they found it was worth it. Friends of theirs had come to America previous to their visit, and on return had fun experiences to share. Because America sounded like a fun and interesting place to go to, Brigitte, Yohan, and Andrea came. Living in America for a year also provided a chance to develop their English skills and to live in and understand a new culture.

Attending Sabino for a year, these students have encountered the many facets of another life. We have been truly privileged to have these three here; they have given us a touch of their culture as we have given them a touch of ours. We all have undergone the experience above all others.

Traveling Europe In Tune

This past summer, dreams came true for Tammi Edwards. She was chosen out of many students to tour Europe with America's Youth in Concert. These outstanding musicians were selected by audition on tape. Tammi was placed in the orchestra and was honored by being the top flutist.

The group of musicians played at Carnegie Hall, the White House, and major cathedrals around the world. They moved on to London, Paris, Venice, Geneva, and a number of principal cities. Florence, Italy was Tammi's favorite city because of the beauty and splendor. She really enjoyed being around serious musicians, where they all had the same goals and interests. Through perseverance and continuing aspirations, dreams can come true.

Seniors Soar With '84

The senior year is both hectic and fulfilling. SAT's and applications to colleges are just a portion of the many challenges facing a senior. Once these are accomplished, the senior is left to enjoy parties and the graduation ceremony that climaxes and concludes the four high school years. The senior class officers are a major force in senior activities. Their leadership led to the winning float in the homecoming parade. The student body officers assisted the other officers and organized assemblies and other activities that most people take for granted.

Stepping Out

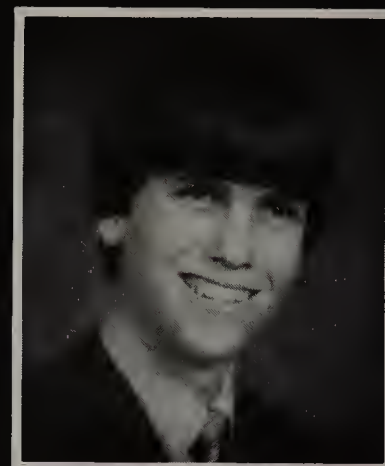

November 25 was the date. A special night for 50 Tucson-area girls including thirteen Sabino students. It was the Tucson Symphony Cotillion Ball, but it wasn't just a one night event. The girls received their invitations in May of their junior year, and then the excitement began. Each girl was required to give a party, but many gave them as groups because of hassles or expense. These parties ranged in theme from a western barbeque to a play at the Gaslight theatre. The girls were also required to have a white bouffant-style gown and a tuxedoed escort for the big night at the Tucson El Conquistador Resort where they were presented by their fathers. It was a night to be remembered by all. The debutantes, however, can share these memories next year when they return to the cotillion as green girls.

Seniors Favor . . .

... Clint Eastwood, Porsches, the color blue, and KWFm. When a poll was given out to one-hundred and fifty Seniors in early February, certain bits of information were discovered. For example, English was found to be the most popular class while Mr. McIntosh was voted the favorite teacher. Many college-bound Sabers should be scattering the campus of the U of A although a large percentage plan to go out of state. The majority of those polled plan to major in business, while Engineering was the second favored major. There were more Scorpions who enjoyed summers the most on the beaches of California or in the mountains of Colorado. All those lucky Seniors possessing a valid lunch pass preferred Wendy's and Eegees' when their fancy for cafeteria food diminished.

Whatever seniors voted, the class of '84 always proved to be unique in their opinions and shining with Sabino style.

Goodbye Sabino . . .

"February 1st deadline. How will I ever get this application done?" This question raced through the minds of many seniors as they prepared for college this year. There were several steps to be taken: teacher recommendations, counselor recommendations, transcripts, and college board scores must all be sent. Finally, the student filled out his own part of the application and wrote an essay or two to demonstrate writing talent.

Applying to colleges tallied up an expensive bill for many seniors also. From paying ten dollars for SAT's or ACT's to the $25 or $35 fee college applications require, students found that just applying to schools emptied their pockets. In the back of everyone's mind was the question: "How will I ever afford to attend this school?"

Finally, college responses began pouring in. Students hoped for thick envelopes rather than the dreaded thin letters, which represented rejection usually. Then students had about two or three weeks to choose between the schools that accepted them, and send in the deposit. The long process was over. Sabino was left behind. Seniors were off on their own, but high school memories will linger.

Modern Love

What is the main interest of today's teenagers? The opposite sex was named the number one interest of Sabino students. Over 90% of Sabino seniors questioned in a spring poll date on a regular basis, although only 46% have a steady boyfriend or girlfriend. It seems as if the class of '84 had a healthy amount of active hormones.

Quite a few precocious kids could be found kissing by the age of 12, while 93% have been in love at least once. Of the many first dates had, most were "good" to "awesome," with only an occasional "pathetic."

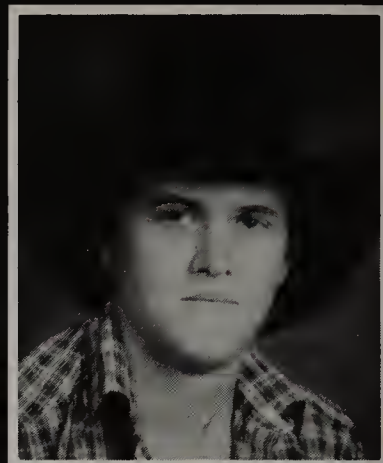

When it came to a date's looks, blue-eyed brunettes had much more fun. However, most didn't care as long as he or she was warm and breathing.

With a dark night (the darker the better), and the moon and stars shining brightly, the thing to do was park. Many liked the Hidden Valley "Hill," Mt. Lemon, Skyline, or anyplace at all with a semi-scenic view. But for some, the still-favorite trysting place (look it up!) was at her front drive.

Learning "Close-Up"

Close-Up, the club, not the toothpaste, has made its mark on Saber territory. Close-Up is a national club in which young Americans are provided an unusual educational experience in the nation's capital, Washington, D.C. Out of twenty-five members, about eight members went on the trip during March 18th-24th. Students were able to go to see seminars, meet representatives, administration officials, reporters, lobbyists and other newsmakers.

Close-Up was governed by Wendy Leonard, president; Lisa Muth, vice-president; and Suzie Peachin, secretary. Club advisor, Mr. Art Learing said, when asked about Close-Up, "It was a helluva trip!"

Graduates Ready For New Moments

High school is full of crazy, little moments. They are the ones that we will remember years down the road. Times like... "when we dropped the stink bomb in the cafeteria," "when we shopped in the maternity department or at Fredericks of Hollywood," "when we sent that teacher a homecoming corsage from a lovestruck girl," "when we harassed the pizza delivery boy at 1:00 a.m.," or strangely, "when we gave a stuffed Care Bear a mohawk."

These moments are unique to high school. Freshmen have their moments as well as sophomores and juniors, but leaving Sabino need not mean that the graduating Class of 1984 is leaving behind these special moments. They can always remember their years here with a smile and can look forward to new beginnings, friends, adventures and moments.

Tina,
 you are a very sweet person and full of advice (I'm not saying ~~that~~ whether it's good or bad. j.k.)
 Have a real good summer &
 Stay outta trouble

 Lauren

Anna - I'm glad we become close friends this year. You've been a real big help with all of my problems and things I needed a friend for. Keep up the hard work and you'll get very far in life.
 What would Mr. Mayfield ever do w/out us? I'd love a great summer. Stay out of trouble.
 Keep in touch. 299-8930

Ena,

It's been a very long time since I've written something in a year book and it's rather fun writing in yours! My - where did the time go? You were so tiny & ran to me to answer your questions, tie your shoes & you expected me to collect your "buggy" specimens! Ugh!! Now it's take you here, remind you of that, did you do this & clean your room - guess some things "never" change! But all-in-all, you've developed into quite a lovely young girl and you make me proud of you. There had a lot of difficulties this year, but through it all, I think we've become closer for all of its problems. Perhaps you do not see it yet, but it's there. I wish you better grades next year as I know you can make it. The things you do now will reflect your future! Use your time wisely -
Love & Hugs, Mom

Jina- hi how are you?
This play is so boring,
wee I'm glad I met you this year. Have a good summer.
Love

Jimmy

Jina,

It was real fun w/
you in my Care Care Class. I really don't know u very well. But even though I still think you're sweet. Have a great summer & stay out of trouble.

Mina,

I hope the rest of high school goes as well for you as mine has for me. Can I go be a blast with Stinky Mr.
Stinky. Good luck

Kelly Byrd '84"

Jina,
I had a lot of fun with you in C.P.S. I know
sometimes we teased
you a lot but it all in fun and we were definitely not serious! You are a really sweet person & I really glad we got to know each other.
Hopefully we will be able to become better friends
next year.
Have a great summer!
Love ya
Dina
